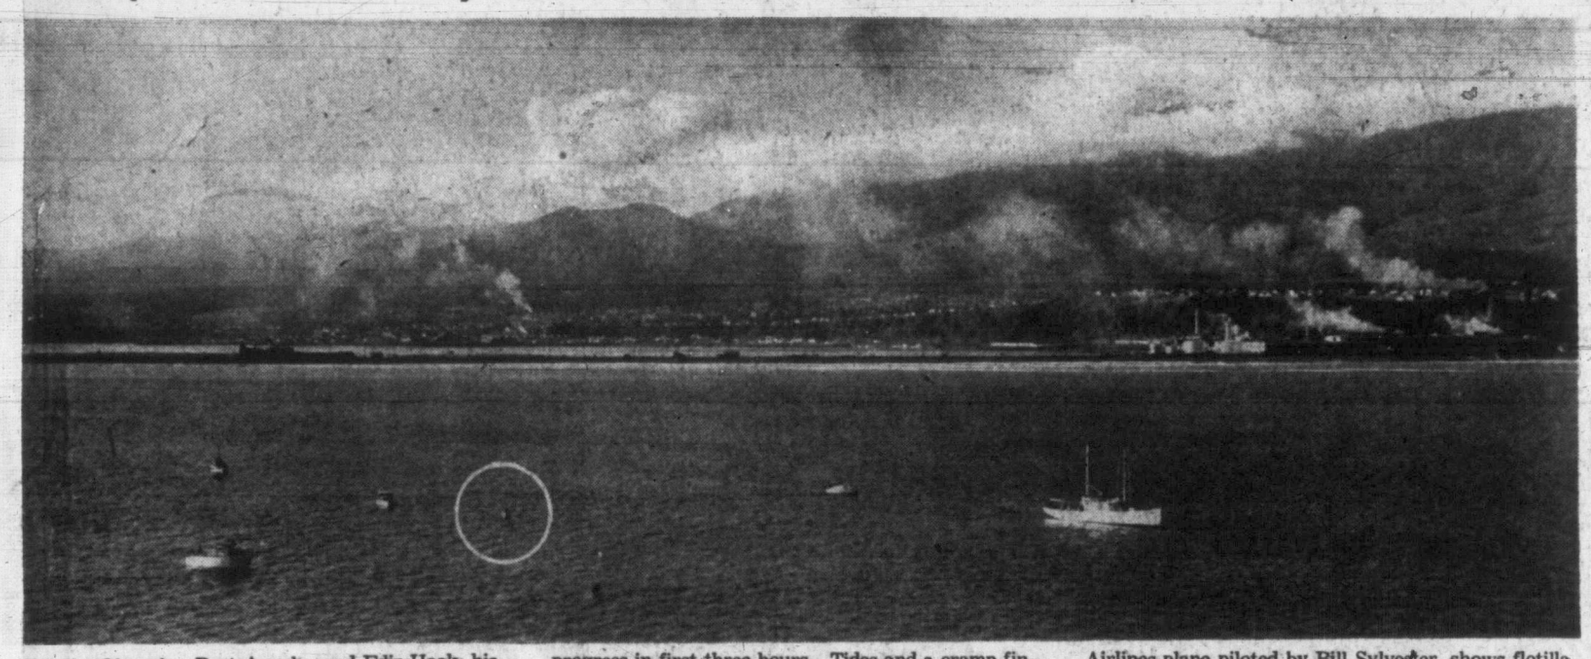
Tide and Cramp Defeat Bill Muir Again

* * * * * * * * *

Dispassionate Olympics Watched Start of 'Wrong-Way' Swim



'ith the Olympics, Port Angeles and Ediz Hook, his arting point, in background, Bill Muir started his wrong-way" swim at 7.16 a.m. today and made fine progress in first three hours. Tides and a cramp finally ended courageous effort at noon. This aerial photo by Times photographer Bill Halkett from B.C. Airlines plane piloted by Bill Sylvester, shows flotilla with official boat, the Lady Royal, in lead. Muir and his coach boat are in circle.

Stubborn Strait Whips Up Chop

City Swimmer Lasts 4 Hours 45 Minutes In Northward Try

He was forced to quit at noon when a cramp—plus the effect of wind and tides—made it impossible for him to proceed.

Breast-stroking Muir, making the first strait crossing try from Port Angeles to Victoria, was in the water four hours and 45 minutes and swam a total of about 12 miles.

He was successful, however, in getting only about four miles from the American shore.

GROUND SWELL

Observers at the scene said Muir was beaten by a big ground swell, westerly winds plus a flood tide which did not come up to expectations.

Muir went in the water at 7.16 a.m. about one mile west of the coast guard station on Ediz Hook (about half way along the Hook).

His plan was to take advantage of about two hours of ebb tide, get slowly away from shore while the tide was carrying him down the strait in the general direction of Cape Flattery.

He hoped when slack water came to go across and pick up the flood to carry him past Race Rocks and into Victoria or between Race Rocks and Vancouver Island.

ACCORDING TO PLAN

Everything went according to plan until Muir was about four miles north of Angeles Point. He already had plied through some severe rips and optimism in the Muir flotilla was high.

By around 11 a.m. — nearly four hours after the start—Muir was about one mile from the international boundary but his progress was beginning to slow. He was swimming strongly but the big help counted on from the flood tide failed to materialize.

The courageous swimmer was swept steadily westward. Race Rocks got farther and farther away.

At noon — having made no progress for about an hour—Muir suffered a cramp, couldn't shake it and gave up.

IN GOOD SHAPE

Muir, who was sponsored on the try by the Lansdowne Cafe, near Shelbourne, was in good shape when taken out of the water, even though he'd tired visibly in the last hour of the assault.

But he was cheery and chatted easily with his handlers.

The cold never bothered him.

Muir was handled on this attempt by Harold Phillips, the man who drifted in a boat two days and nights in the Strait nine years ago. Muir's first try was navigated by Alf Webb. But Webb had no part of this attempt because he didn't agree with the route.

25-A-MINUTE

Muir stuck to a 25-per-minute stroke throughout today's swim. This compared to 35-40 in his first effort.

His handlers insisted he keep to the slower pace because time wasn't considered the big factor.

Only once before the end came at noon was the Muir camp downhearted. That was at about 9.15 when the weather took a turn for the worse. The wind freshened, and there were white caps everywhere.

But in half an hour the weather improved and progress was steady again until around 11 a.m.

B.C. ENJOYS 'DEATHLESS' HOLIDAY

Dominion Day violent deaths took the lives of 50 persons in Canada, but none of the fatalities occurred in British Columbia.

It is the first time in many years this province has come through the holiday without any deaths on the highways.

Victoria and Vancouver Island had several road accidents, but none of a serious nature.

The clean slate brought enthusiastic comment from traffic officials of the province. Chief John Blackstock of Victoria said it was a "fine show" and he pleaded for continued "driving sense" during the remainder of the week-end.

(From Canadian Press Dispatches)

Tributes and congratulations were heaped today on underdog oarsmen from the University of British umbia for their magnificent showing at the historic ıley Regatta where they lost by a scant one-third of ngth to the University Pennsylvania crew in the finals he Grand Challenge Cup after defeating the formidable sian eight by a length and a half in the semi-finals day. remier W. A. C. Bennett t a cable: "The government people of B.C. congratulate on your wonderful victory yesterday and your remark- showing today. Best wishes our party."

n official statement from the office of Vancouver's Mayor Fred Hume said:

"Their victory over the Russians has proved that the success of the same crew at the British Empire Games last year was no fluke victory. An outstanding aspect of their win is that little over a year ago they were all novices."

Dean S. N. F. Chant, acting president of UBC, said the victory was "a great tribute to Frank Read as coach and to members of the crew who worked so loyally under his guidance."

"The university is very proud of them and our best wishes go with them for the final test," he said.

SWAP SHIRTS

Canadian National Exhibition officials in Toronto cabled both the B.C. crew and their victor, the Penn. U. eight inviting them to race during the exhibition early in September.

And back in England the Russians they had so surprisingly defeated, swapped shirts with the Canadian oarsmen and posed with them for a group picture; but UBC officials turned down a Russian request to try out the Vancouver shell in a practice run.

As to today's race itself, stroke Glen Smith said: "We did not get our rate of striking down fast enough."

Carl Ogawa, 20-year-old 115-pound Japanese-Canadian coxswain of the crew, said the fairly strong crosswind had not bothered him.

"Anyway it was the same for both of us," he added.

WATER CONTAMINATION NEW FLOOD DANGER

VANCOUVER (CP)—A new danger grew through the fertile valley country of British Columbia today just as the fear of severe flooding was dying. (See page 3.)

The threat of water contamination was disclosed as medical health officials in Surrey, B.C., 15 miles southeast of here, warned residents to boil their drinking water.

And in the CNR town of Port Mann, 14 miles to the east, a 15-year-old girl was reported ill with a throat infection. Her family expressed belief it may have been caused by contaminated water.

ATOMS FOR PEACE

Atom Planes 10 Years Off

CHAPTER VI

THE ATOM IN THE AIR

By DAVID O. WOODBURY

In the descending order of probability for atomic power tomorrow, the airplane comes next.

Quite early in the game large military aircraft were proposed as ideal for atomic engines, because a plane's fuel range is embarrassingly short.

Soon after the war, the U.S. air force in collaboration with AEC, set up a project to explore the possibilities.

A number of industrial firms were asked to submit proposals for airframes and atomic propulsion units.

Their task was principally to work out basic designs of reactors and shielding that would be practical in the air. It was a problem, for they were going back to the days of Langley and his ill-fated steam-driven airplane.

The designers were now competing with the world's most compact engines, phenomenally light and easily controlled.

Against these stiff odds the engineers had to gamble a minimum of some 50 tons of shielding, the weight of the pile and

NEW SWIM ATTEMPTS

Mrs. Meraw, Thomas Take Off Next Week

Mrs. Ann Mundigel Meraw, a slight 36-year-old Vancouver housewife, and burly Bert Thomas, are both planning assaults on the Strait of Juan de Fuca next week.

Mrs. Meraw will make a last tice swim on the U.S. side for Sidney wharf at 9 a.m., and swimming for eight hours before returning to the wharf.

Her time of departure for the strait attempt will not be announced until 12 hours before take-off, but coach Pat Roach of Toronto said this morning the attempt would be made by Friday.

Mrs. Meraw will leave from the Victoria side of the strait, and her start will be made at night. Details of the course, and the swimmer's navigator, are being kept secret.

Bert Thomas will make his fifth attempt to cross the strait, "anytime the weather's right." Bert will leave for Port Angeles this evening, and his first practice swim on the U.S. side for the latest attempt will start from Ediz Hook about 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

Bert is going to make every practice swim from Port Angeles an official swim, and if conditions are right, he'll keep going "right into the Inner Harbor."

Webster, CCF Chief, To Wed Economist

VANCOUVER (CP)—The engagement of Arnold Webster, 56, head of the CCF party in British Columbia, and Miss Daisy de Jong, former inspector of home economics for the provincial government, was announced here today.

Miss de Jong resigned her post last month. She declined to divulge the "hour and place" of the wedding, which she said would be private. Mr. Webster was in Nanaimo on party business.

Steel Workers Get 15c Hike, Customers Get Price Boost

PITTSBURGH (AP)—U. S. Steel Corp., which granted an average 15-cent-an-hour wage boost to its employees to break the back of a country-wide steel strike, is boosting prices about $7.50 a ton.

Big Steel's action came shortly after it ended the shortest walkout in the industry's history by the United Steelworkers (CIO).

Within a few hours after the 12-hour strike ended Friday all of the industry's "big six" had followed the leader in agreeing to the pay boost. They are Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Republic, Jones & Laughlin, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Inland Steel.

Clifford F. Hood, U.S. Steel president, said the 5.8 per cent increase—which will put a $132.50 price tag on a ton of basic carbon steel—wasn't entirely the result of the wage increase.

Hood said other factors are involved, such as increased taxes and new construction.

CCF Leader Beaten at Alberta; Vote Rolls on, 9 Liberals In EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's Social Credit government, a new mandate tucked under its platform, will face in the new legislature the second strongest opposition since it was voted into office 20 years ago.

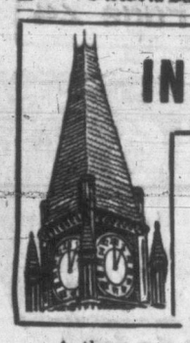
Social Credit had 35 of the 61 seats in the legislature today when the complicated vote system still clouded the outcome of another 12 seats. Final result of Wednesday's election won't be known until next Wednesday at the earliest.

The Liberal party, out of office in Alberta since 1921, will form the official opposition with the largest representation it has had since the 1935 Social Credit sweep.

The last tabulation showed 14 opposition members elected. Liberals lead with nine—more than double the strength they had in the last legislature.

CCF leader Elmer E. Roper, a member of the legislature for 13 years, was defeated. His seat was won by a Liberal.

The fate of two cabinet ters was still not decided. cial Secretary - Treasurer Gerhart led in Acadia-Con but Attorney-General Lucie nard trailed in St. Albert.



IN PARLIAMENT

Committee Named To Study Federal Sales, Excise Taxes

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

A three-man committee made up of a chartered accountant, a lawyer-businessman and an industrialist has been set up to find a better method of levying federal sales and excise taxes.

Committee members are K. M. Carter, Toronto chartered accountant and past president of the Canadian Tax Foundation; Raymond Dupuis of the Montreal department store firm of Dupius Freres Ltd., and A. E. McGilvray of Oshawa, Ont., a senior officer of General Motors of Canada.

Finance Minister Harris, announcing the committee's makeup to the Commons Friday, said no deadline has been set for completion of its work. He hoped the government would receive a report reasonably soon.

Forecast in Mr. Harris' April 5 budget, the committee's main job will be to recommend where to add sales and excise taxes to goods as they move from factory to consumer.

The taxes generally are levied on an article's price when it leaves the factory. Usually they are embodied in the price charged by wholesalers and retailers.

Clarie Gillis (CCF, Cape Breton South) suggested that labor be represented on the committee. Mr. Harris said this was not done because the committee's job is to study the technical application of sales and excise taxes.

Will Study Specific Questions

Mr. Harris said the committee has been instructed to:

1. Examine the problem arising under sales and excise taxes where manufacturers sell to customers at different levels in the marketing process. The committee will recommend a definition of a tax base or statutory method of administrative practice to equalize the tax payable on goods of like value.

2. Study the question of appeals from taxes imposed under the Excise Tax Act and recommend methods to improve procedure.

3. Examine the problem with regard to the tax payable by importers of goods and that payable by manufacturers in Canada of goods of like value when sold to customers at different levels.

4. Inquire into the system of exemptions for goods based on their use and recommend changes to achieve greater simplicity and certainty without substantial loss of revenues.

Trans-Canada Highway Progress

Works Minister Winters said Friday night in a report on the trans-Canada highway, 30 per cent of the road now has been built to the specified standards.

To date, he said during study of his department's estimates, 1,481 miles have been graded and 1,075 miles paved. Once gaps in Newfoundland and Ontario were graded it would be possible to motor from one end of Canada to the other in relative comfort.

Mr. Winters said the route is 4,580 miles long through all provinces except Quebec, which has not signed an agreement to share in the construction. The federal government contributes half the cost, the provinces doing the work.

MONEY HALF GONE

As of June 20, Mr. Winters said, the government was committed to $94,087,949, half the $188,175,898 earmarked by all governments for the project.

The agreements expire Dec. 9, 1956.

In the three prairie provinces there was a possibility the entire route would be completed to trans-Canada standards by the expiration date.

Completion did not seem possible by that date in British Columbia, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

New Brunswick had a paved route across the province, not all up to trans-Canada standards.

B.C.'s major unfinished section was along the big bend of the Columbia River, between Revelstoke and Golden. However, B.C. had requested federal assistance in a survey to cut 100 miles off the route by building the road through Rogers Pass.

Erhart Regier, persistent CCF opponent of parliamentary divorces, warned the government Friday his party will read into the official Commons record all the details of such divorce cases unless something is done about ridding Parliament of them.

The member for Burnaby-Coquitlam said the government has appealed to all parties not to put into Hansard the details of evidence given to parliamentary committees which hear divorce petitions—almost all from Quebec and Newfoundland, which have no divorce courts.

The government did not like "to see the grimy details besmirch the pages of Hansard," the verbatim record of all that is spoken in Parliament.

But, Mr. Regier said, if it is necessary to relieve Parliament of the onerous task of granting divorces, the CCF will put all the grimy details into Hansard.

He spoke as the Commons passed 36 divorce bills and held up final reading on two petitions for divorce both of Montreal.

Development of an integrated transportation system for British Columbia's gulf islands was urged Friday night.

Colin Cameron (CCF, Nanaimo) said population of the islands between Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland is increasing and more demands are going to be made for more adequate transportation. The first step should be a transportation survey of the area.

Mr. Cameron also said small-boat harbors are needed on the east coast of Vancouver Island. Between Nanaimo and Courtenay, a distance of 80 miles, there was only one reasonably safe harbor.

Investigation into government purchase of an Ottawa property for more than twice the amount paid by the previous owner two years ago was demanded Friday.

Donald Fleming, PC-Toronto-Eglington, said the price of $1,396,000 for a Wellington street property was exorbitant in view of the fact that the net cost to the owner was $625,730.

50 Die Violently, Roads Jammed; Malenkov Attends Moscow Party

(By British United Press)

Canadians stretched the one-day Dominion Day holiday into the summer's first long week-end today with celebrations that ranged from jammed beaches at home to the shade of the Kremlin in Moscow.

Many at home took to the highways Thursday night or Friday morning and headed for resorts throughout this country and points in the United States. In Montreal alone, some 40,000 persons jammed the Jacques Cartier bridge, a main artery leading over the St. Lawrence river and out of the city, and produced what police said was the worst traffic jam in five years.

While most Canadians enjoyed a long week-end to mark what some call Dominion Day and others Canada Day—both honoring the nation's 88th birthday—the accidental death toll grew by the hour.

British United Press survey started at 6 p.m. Thursday showed at least 50 persons died violently, including 16 in traffic, 25 by drowning and seven from miscellaneous causes connected with the holiday.

Ontario Has Most Fatalities

Ontario had the heaviest toll, of 23, another 10 in Quebec. The toll by other provinces was New Brunswick seven, Nova Scotia three, and Alberta five. There were no fatal accidents in B.C.

In Moscow, Russia's "second-string" leaders, including ousted Premier Georgi Malenkov, attended the Canadian ambassador's Friday reception. Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev, Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov did not attend. (Molotov is en route home from the United States). However all the secondary leaders accepted Ambassador J. B. Watkins invitation. The heads of other diplomatic missions and a party of Canadian journalists now visiting Moscow also attended.

Throughout the world Canadian diplomatic missions and armed forces held open house. Canada House in London was jammed by over 1,000 Canadian travellers and residents of London for the traditional high commissioner's reception.

Overseas Men Stage Jamboree

Canadian troops and airmen in France and Germany had a holiday. Special events were planned by nearly every unit with German and French guests invited.

At Dortmund, Germany, in the heart of the Canadian area, 8,000 servicemen and their families whooped it up at a mammoth jamboree. A highlight of the festivities was a Canadian-style log splitting contest.

In Ottawa, parliament sat on Friday as usual. The day was marked at the beginning of the session when the house, at Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's suggestion, sang "O Canada" and "God Save The Queen." The day was chosen for presentation to the library of parliament of a specially prepared history of the former home of Sir John A. MacDonald, the father of confederation.

The house is now the residence of the British high commissioner and the history was written by G. F. N. Reddaway, senior secretary of the commission. It was presented to parliament by High Commissioner Sir Archibald Nye.

MISS CANADA 'WHO'S WHO' STILL SECRET

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ten young Canadian women remained in the running for selection as Miss Canada today but who they are is a secret shared only by a panel of eight judges.

A second night of judging Friday saw preliminary awards for talent and bathing suit deportment go to two of the 23 contestants.

Talent winners so far have included Hazelanne Guloien, 21, a soprano from Wadena, Sask., and 20-year-old Aileen Moore, a Calgary dancer and baton twirler.

When Miss Canada is selected tonight from among the 10 finalists, she will be presented with a $1,000 scholarship cheque and an expense-paid trip to Atlantic City, N.J., for the Miss America contest early in September.

He had already undergone operations for amputation of several fingers and part of his hand.

Threat of Flood On Mainland Virtually Gone

Highways Restored; Fraser Going Down

VANCOUVER (CP) — Residents of Britsh Columbia's fertile valleys today drew assurance from fast-receding river levels that the flood disaster of seven years ago would not be repeated this year.

Restoration of all B.C. highways, flood - ridden earlier this week, was announced Friday as crews completed their inital battle against washouts and slides.

Even though the turbulent Fraser river still hovered at its highest level since 1948, diking officials declared that the stream's threat was spent.

NO FURTHER THREAT

J. L. MacDonald, provincial diking commissioner, said he could not foresee a further threat by the Fraser this year following the passing of the flood-crest.

Level of the Fraser at Mission City, official flood gauge, read slightly over 22 feet and was dropping. The dikes are built to withstand a 27-foot level.

Some localized flooding in the Port Mann and Port Kells regions, about 25 miles upstream from Vancouver, was dropping Friday and about a dozen families who had evacuated planned to return to their homes today.

In south-eastern B.C. the threat of the Columbia river also diminished with fast drops reported from the smelter city of Trail.

TASS SPRINGS SURPRISE

Russian Papers Print Text Of Ike's Press Conference

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The publication at length in Friday's Russian newspapers of President Eisenhower's press conference Wednesday burst upon Western diplomats here as a stunning surprise.

In his press conference, reported without comment by the Soviet news agency Tass, President Eisenhower referred to the "riddle" of who ruled the Soviet Union, and the obstable which Russia's "satellites" presented to world peace.

The novelty of such a phrase in Russia's press as "nobody knew who exercised the ruling influence in that group"—as Tass quoted Eisenhower — caught diplomats here by surprise.

Never before has the Soviet press printed declarations that world peace was unobtainable until the satellites were "able to determine their own form of government freely," as Tass quoted Eisenhower.

Vancouver Holiday Marred By Thuggery

VANCOUVER (CP)—Thieves and hoodlums celebrated the July 1 holiday here with two robberies with violence and a wave of assault cases.

Police said two men were beaten and robbed in separate incidents but total loot was only $24 in cash and a bottle of whisky.

A woman was taken to hospital after she was assaulted by a man who broke into her home and threatened her with a butcher knife.

A hotel clerk said two men "roughed me up" when they objected to a request that they report to the desk before visiting rooms.

KIEL, Germany (AP)—Russia has returned 13 torpedo boats and a submarine chaser to the United States at this Baltic port. The vessels were loaned to Russia during the Second World War.

Primitive Medicine

Supernatural powers, spirits, and demons rule the cults of primitive medical practice in many remote sections of the world. The medicine man, with his symbolic paraphernalia, is thought to possess the "power" to reveal the cause of illness and to provide curative drugs.

The dramatic and mysterious have always appealed to man's imagination, sometimes to the point of destroying his perspective. However, questions pertaining to pain and illness are always best answered by your family physician. We are qualified to prepare any medicine he may prescribe.

STUART KEATE, Publisher — BRUCE HUTCHISON, Editor

Why We Asked the Questions

EARLIER THIS WEEK PREMIER Bennett invited newspapers which have challenged his debt reduction claims, to send editorial writers and accountants to question him on the subject.

The Times, acting in the spirit of the invitation, prepared a list of straight-forward questions for Mr. Bennett and sought to present them at the regular press conference. The premier dismissed them out of hand with the statement he was not going to be "led off the issue with trick questions."

The list of questions was printed in the news columns of this paper on Thursday. The queries dealt with borrowings for schools, toll bridges, the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and general financing.

Briefly they drew the attention of the premier-finance minister to the manner in which similar borrowings had been made by the previous administration and had been listed as provincial debt. They asked if the present system of charging them to the agencies for which the money was raised was not merely a book-keeping arrangement which, while it did not list the amounts guaranteed by the government as debts of the government, still left them as debts—some self-liquidating—against the people of British Columbia.

The list submitted by the Times and rejected by the premier ended with the question: "Is it a fact that the combined direct debt and guaranteed debt has jumped by some $30,000,000 in the past year?" (Michael Barkway, writing in the Financial Post of June 25, uses the figure of $44,000,000.)

The last question is the nub of the whole matter. The people of British Columbia are less interested in the methods by which Mr. Bennett makes his book entries than they are with the amount of the mortgage which they have—through their government—underwritten.

No amount of talk, no stylish book-keeping, will alter that point. It is for this reason that the Times asked its questions. This newspaper is not interested in forensics on the point. It wants to know, and it believes the people want to know, how much they may be required to find to meet the obligations assumed in their names.

In the case of schools the public knows that provincial revenue is going to be used to meet half the costs and carrying charges of debts incurred, though they are incurred in the name of the school districts. The taxpayers hope that Mr. Bennett may be correct in assuming that the PGE extensions will pay for themselves in increased earnings. Experiences of the past with the railroad are not reassuring.

But whether the borrowings can be compensated by revenue from projects which they finance or not, they are still borrowings and B.C.'s guarantee is behind them.

In fairness to the public, the government should give a simple and accurate picture. Many sections of the public feel that is not the picture they are receiving.

About two years ago former Premier Byron Johnson drew attention to misunderstandings—if the euphemistic term is to be used—caused by debt reduction claims made by Premier Bennett at that time. Mr. Johnson's points were substantiated by a report from a special firm of chartered accountants engaged to check both his and Mr. Bennett's statements.

That experience should surely bring home to the premier the desirability of presenting a factual, unequivocal statement which, in simple terms, will show British Columbians where they stand—not how the accounts have been shifted around or called by other names.

It was to that end the Times asked its questions.

Mr. Clyde Macdonald

ONE OF THE VICTORIA DAILY Times employees who counted his service in decades rather than in years, the late Clyde Macdonald had earned high esteem as a workman not only among his fellow-employees of the composing room but among the editorial and advertising staffs as well.

Clyde was the sort of man you went to when you had a problem in make-up or type that demanded experience and understanding. From the depths of his knowledge he would produce a quiet word of advice that solved the problem. He was a craftsman who thoroughly knew his craft, and took a pride in its achievement.

Workers at Victoria Press, and particularly those on The Daily Times, will miss that quiet competence. They will miss, too, the friendly morning greeting, the cheerful enquiry about week-end doings, the occasional comment on the news.

But Clyde Macdonald's interests ranged far beyond the job he knew so well. He leaves a host of friends in the sporting world, for throughout his life he was a keen angler and hunter, and as a youth he had been well known on the soccer field and the baseball diamond.

To the family members who survive, the Daily Times offers the deepest condolences. They will know that their feeling of loss is shared by a wide circle of friends in this community.

As Our Readers See It

"FREEDOM OF WORSHIP"

As president of the executive council of the convention of regular Baptists of British Columbia, under whose auspices the resolution under discussion was duly passed and because of the repercussion resulting from the publication of your editorial entitled "Freedom of Worship," published on June 18, 1955, I feel a reply must be made. A copy of the resolution had been delivered to your office and should have revealed to you the true facts which have been distorted.

You say, "It should be realized that the 'Protestant League' under whose auspices the protest has been launched . . ." etc. This statement is incorrect as an examination of the resolution will make evident, and is the occasion for building up inferences and conclusions which are not warranted.

You further say that the resolution was an "intemperate demand" that the procession "be blocked." This is nowhere suggested in the resolution and consequently this also is incorrect. Our protest was not against a procession but against the exhibition in the procession of what is designated "The Blessed Sacrament" or consecrated bread which according to the Canons of the Council of Trent must be worshipped "with the worship of latria," the same worship as that given to God Himself. If any desire to believe this, that is their right, but to impose its exhibition on the general public is another matter.

I would therefore ask that you publish this reply in as conspicuous a manner as your editorial, which has unfortunately resulted in offensive letters and false charges being received by Dr. J. B. Rowell who has honorably served your community for the past 28 years, believing that this misunderstanding created in the public mind should be corrected since he is held in high esteem throughout our entire constituency.

H. C. PHILLIPS.

FOR THE FUTURE

After reading "The Race in Space" in the Daily Times (May 30), how much more interesting is the "Atom for Peace" series now running. How will humanity react? Are people willing to train and prepare themselves for that goal in the future?

The future of course will be the effect of today as the effects of today can be traced to the causes of the past—the old law of cause and effect and still in operation.

Has mankind achieved the ability to choose between destruction and construction?

If not, why not?

The most that man can do, is the least that he can do for what he is getting.

"PROGRESS."

RED SHIELD ON HIGH

The Salvation Army 1955 Red Shield appeal for funds has been brought to a successful conclusion, and the committee and officers of the Army are pleased to announce to the public through the courtesy of your newspaper, the sum of $38,352.70, has been realized, representing an increase of $852.70 over the quota.

To the volunteer workers and canvassers as well as the many donors, we express our hearty thanks.

The thousands of donations, many from wage earners and service personnel, bespeaks the high value placed upon the services of The Salvation Army, both in peacetime and war.

It is our sincere hope and prayer we we shall always merit the confidence placed in "The Army of The Open Door to Help and Hope."

God bless you all!

LOOSE ENDS — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Town of Twelve-Foot Davis

PEACE RIVER: Eight hundred feet above the town of Peace River, where this is written, lie the bones of Twelve Foot Davis. And that is an important thing to remember in the history of Canada. Twelve Foot Davis died long ago, he was not a Peace River man by birth, but he gave this last frontier its great legend. As his tombstone truthfully states, he was every man's friend "and he never locked his cabin door."

Hutchison

A great history, older than ours on Vancouver Island, clings to the legend of Twelve Foot Davis.

Alexander Mackenzie camped close to this town for the winter before he paddled up the Peace River, crossed to the Fraser and then walked to the sea, the first white man to cross the continent north of Mexico.

After him came countless Nor'Westers and Hudson's Bay men, among them Simpson, the Little Emperor of western America. Then the first mad bands of gold-seekers on their way overland to the Klondike, who found that the soil of Peace River was more precious than gold.

THIS town started with a ferry across the Peace River. It has grown to a community of 2,500 people and looks like the last true Wild West town as Hollywood would build it.

Its setting is, I suppose, one of the noblest in the world. From the hill where Davis lies you can look over a large chunk of the continent and the unraveled reaches of the Peace, studded with its archipelago of green islands. In this immensity the town on the river bank is a child's toy. As I stood gasping at this spectacle, the sun slipped down over the hills—far to the north in this latitude—and turned the vast sheet of the river into fire.

BUT it is not easy or comfortable to reach the Peace River country. For some reason the Alberta Government has neglected the road from Edmonton, with the result that, on a rainy day, we traveled for twelve solid hours in mud until the car, painted blue originally, was dark brown and all its windows quite opaque.

Near Lesser Slave Lake traffic had been held up for a forthnight at the worst of the spring weather and the Government engineers had piled countless tons of rock into a bottomless bog.

Well, we slithered through to find that the freakish Alberta climate had left Peace River town dry. One moment were blinded by mud of a peculiarly adhesive quality; a moment later we were choked with dust.

ALBERTA'S climate is as queer as Social Credit, and the two aberrations may be somehow connected. It will be raining fiercely at some point along the road and, a mile further along, parched. That is part of the country's charm, and it is so charming that its people regard it as the long-lost Garden of Eden.

Some day it will be a garden. At present it is perhaps the richest farm land in Canada, raising crops of wheat and oats unbelievable to the farmers of the prairies.

It has poor road connection and no spiritual connection whatever with the rest of Alberta—a kingdom of its own. Politically its western sector is part of British Columbia but only by a political convention.

THE Bennett Government proposes to drain Peace River's wealth into Vancouver with an extended P.G.E., concerning which the natives are enthusiastic. But I have found no one in these parts who believes that the railway will pay. That, however, is B.C.'s headache. If Mr. Bennett can give the region a westward outlet he will be a popular man in Peace River and no questions asked.

PROBLEM FOR THE BIG BRASS — By B. A. TOBIN

General Security Pact May Be the Answer

THE SIGNS are increasing that a settlement of the German problem will be a major topic of discussion at the forthcoming meeting of Big Four leaders.

Both in itself and as a part of a general European settlement the German question is a vital one for the world. The Eastern and Western world blocs have each advanced tentative answers. But it is obvious from their nature that the eventual solution must be a compromise; it is also more likely to be effected over an extended period of time than to be imposed in one step.

Reunification of the divided parts of the former Reich is of course an integral part of any settlement. But even this is a much more complex matter than appears on the surface.

The desire of East and West Germans to be reunited has been amply demonstrated. Russia and the Western allies have proposed means by which this might be achieved. But to date such proposals have been unfruitful. They have broken down mainly on the question of elections.

Britain and the United States wish to see free, democratic elections in the Western manner. The Soviet Union seeks to ensure that the existing communist regime in East Germany will be represented in the new national field. But apart from this problem, which is not insuperable, there is a more fundamental difficulty which is not so commonly raised.

Eastern Sections

The Germany which Hitler's ambition destroyed consisted of more than what are now usually referred to as East and West Germany. There were the eastern sections which now have been absorbed into post-war Poland, which in turn lost its eastern fringe to the U.S.S.R.

When Germans speak of reunification they mean not only East and West Germany but the lost territories as well. Yet to include such lands and populations in a German settlement would involve a great disruption of Russia's system of border satellites—a setback to the system of security zones the Soviet Union wrung out of the war. There is little likelihood of such a step.

That does not preclude a partial arrangement, however, with hopes of a final solution at some indefinite date in the future.

Now that West Germany is in the Western European Union and NATO as a segment of the West's defensive system, the matter of reunification has assumed a somewhat different diplomatic position. Russia is less free with offers of reunification since such offers lost their value as possible stumbling-blocks to completion of Western defence plans. At the same time the West has achieved a better bargaining position and can afford to wait a little longer for a favorable approach.

From this improved position it is able to give closer consideration to a much larger question which is increasingly discussed and which may form the chief subject of debate at Geneva when the heads of state gather there later this month.

This is a project which was put forward by Russia more than a year ago, but which in principle has long been in the minds of such statesmen as Sir Winston Churchill. Briefly, it would effect a direct mutual guarantee of security between East and West, and remove from Soviet Russia its excuse for large armaments—the claim that Moscow is threatened by the West.

In Sir Winston's occasional references to such a development, the project assumed the nature of a general pact guaranteeing security. In the guise in which it is now reported to be discussed in Washington circles it would take the form of an agreement between NATO and its communist counterpart, the Soviet-dominated Warsaw Alliance.

Such a solution would be diplomacy on the grand scale. It could end the cold war almost overnight if Russia adopted it in sincerity. But there are many attendant factors which would make agreement difficult.

Threat to West?

In one sense—the sense in which it was seen by the West when the Soviet Union proposed it—an all-European pact could undo the work of the West in erecting the defensive structure of NATO, but still leave the Russian system of satellite states in working order. It could, as Moscow proposed, roll United States defensive forces westward out of Germany—perhaps right out of Europe—while returning the Red Army only to its own national borders, still within marching distance of European battlefields.

Obviously such a plan would reach deep into the whole post-war structure of both worlds and inaugurate a new relationship between the cold-war antagonists, particularly if accompanied by a workable disarmament program.

But against the many difficulties must be set the likely alternative: a continuation of peace-just-short-of-shooting, of atomic and other armaments, of international jockeying in the diplomatic sphere which threatens constantly to spill over into the military field.

This is not a prospect to be favored by either East or West. For even if the long-term aims of communism call for the fomentation of chaos and unrest, the current internal economic situation of the Soviet Union is believed to be none too healthy, and a period of international stability would no doubt be welcome to the planners in the Kremlin.

Against this background the leaders will go to Geneva. By all appearances it will prove to be a crucial meeting.

LOOKING OVER MY SHOULDER — By TOM MERRIMAN

The Birth of the Victoria Jaycees

THIS STORY goes back a long way: more than 30 years, although 30 years doesn't seem a long time when you have seen twice that many. It goes back to the early 20's and the formation of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Victoria.

Merriman

To one of Victoria's most public-spirited and far-sighted citizens, Maj. H. Cuthbert Holmes must go the credit of founding the first Junior Chamber. Although soundly established at that time with the old real estate firm of Pemberton & Son—now Pemberton Holmes Ltd.—of which he is the head today, he was among the youngest of a group of elder citizens who at that time led the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

GREATER FIELD

The major felt there should be a greater field for expression of opinion for young men who naturally had most to gain from the future welfare of the city. He also realized that the annual membership of $25 in the senior chamber was a financial barrier for some of the younger men. In those days senior Chamber of Commerce membership was almost a closed corporation, consisting of men who owned established businesses or held executive positions with large firms.

Maj. Holmes set out to widen the field by admitting younger men into the organization for the nominal fee of $10.

It was no easy task he set himself.

Some of the elders frowned on the idea of youth taking part in their deliberations. A few were openly hostile. The major, however, was persistent. Without putting it in so many words he worked on the old adage "old men for counsel, young men for action."

The elders realized there were a lot of duties younger men could take off their shoulders and Junior Chamber of Commerce soon became an accomplished fact.

Some of the new Jaycees soon found it wasn't easy to make a speech in public and had a little difficulty in putting their ideas into words. To overcome this they formed a public speaking class. It has paid off since for most of them.

In the group were some who already had the gift of public speaking.

There was Lawyer Wm. T. Straith, who afterwards became Minister of Education and Provincial Secretary. Another lawyer member was W. H. Haldane, president of the Victoria Conservative Association. Percy George, who was at that time making a preliminary canter in the Parent-Teacher and School Board field on the way to becoming mayor of Victoria and now a member of the Public Utilities Commission was another Jaycee.

H. Sandham Graves, a young reporter at that time, now editor of the Daily Colonist, was among the group and has since proved on many occasions that he comes under the head of orator.

City Clerk Frank Hunter was another member.

Any speech he made then and any he has made since has been intensely serious.

TIME LIMIT

We will, however, never know the final passage of one speech Frank made over the old CFCT radio station 30 years ago.

There was a time limit.

In the closing passages of his speech Frank reached the heights of eloquence and was obviously leading up to one of those magnificent perorations in the preparation of which an orator pours his life's blood or loses hours of sleep.

Bang went the gong.

The technician lowered the boom.

One line of that treasured last passage was all that reached the eager listeners. Then some muttering from Frank. He seemed to be arguing that his whole speech had been wrecked because of sixty seconds air time.

Recalling other members of the original Junior Chamber, Walter Miles moved up to the senior chamber. Aubrey H. C. Jones, now president of the Pacific Club and Dockyard civil servant has found different interests. Eric Marshall has since gone through a war as an artillery major and returned to his former work as a transportation executive.

MANY ORIGINALS

George Willis became a travel bureau operator. Bill Heaney, hauling, storage and shipping contractor, W. E. (Bill) Speed, realtor, Frank H. Partridge, retired real estate man, whose letters to the editor appear in the newspapers almost daily, Henry Hawkins, in charge of the Victoria Press Ltd. downtown office, Alan Pendray, manager of B. A. Paint, Len Cox, manager of Paint Supply Co. Roy Hebden, jewelry store manager at Duncan, Carew Martin, barrister, Fred W. Francis, jewelry store owner.

Others were Tom Sturgess, now deputy minister of Trade and Industry, Art Kerr, manager of Remington Rand, W. H. (Bill) Bayliss, Neon sign manufacturer, J. N. (Jock) Findlay, roofing contractor, Bill Oliver, who after years with the B.C. police and hospital insurance left Victoria recently to become manager of Nanaimo Arena, Roy Denny and Les Osborne.

Les was a smart, pipe-smoking young salesmen at that time but when old time friends succumb to the Parliament Building's twin temptations of high salaries and security and find sanctuary in one of the luxurious offices within that stately pile you lose track of them.

Britain's Weather Question: Bikinis or Duffle Coats?

From The Times (London)

A GLOBE-trotting English girl wrote home to her family the other day that the great point about the place she was visiting was that, when she got an invitation to a picnic, she could be sure a week in advance, that it would be all right to wear a cotton frock.

Her reaction to exploring the Commonwealth is—in reverse—that of the Jamaicans who, shuddering to think that they had rashly contemplated bringing their wives and children over to Britain, have just set sail from our shores, gaily exclaiming, as they left, that, within a fortnight, they will be back in the sunshine of the West Indies—even if there is not much money there.

A thoughtful theologian, listening in a Scottish kirk to a guest preacher, heard him describe the scene of his far-flung missionary labors as delightful, except that the people there were a queer lot and the climate abominable. "Man," exclaimed the member of the congregation, "that's all that's the matter wi' hell."

The South African cricketers, in spite of the fitful sunshine arranged for them by the M.C.C., may well agree with the departing Jamaicans that this, climatically, is a diabolical island. So will those many islanders who swam home in a deluge the other night after listening for as long as they could take it, to the election results.

Can even the most diehard believer in the heresy of Oh! to be in England at any time of the year confidently make a case for himself in this summer of disgrace? If he tries to do so, he can only fall back on that stale old argument that to know for weeks ahead whether bikinis or duffle coats should be worn is dull—like a mythical Derby in which the winner was predestined.

Eternal sunshine, according to this school of thought, would be as monotonous as that effortless virtue which has been described as being so little creditable to the angels who alone practice it.

There is only one flaw in this gallant attempt to make the most of a bad job. Who would not plump for certainty—if it were attainable for every hour of the holiday?

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Wimpole Street Surgery

LONDON—Whenever I've been in England I have always gone to the same dentist. He was a friend of my father and they had learned dentistry together in the Dominions.

Reyburn

Pioneer stuff . . . I remember my father used to go round the country districts on horseback doing his work and used to be so tired at night from yanking molars many miles apart that he used to get on his horse and go to sleep and the horse would carry him home.

So whenever my teeth have played up on visits to England in the 20s, the 30s, during the war and now I have always dropped in on my father's friend to get him to fix things up. Over the years it has become a familiar trip to his surgery on Wimpole street. It is in a converted three-story house, what was formerly a Georgian mansion but now given over to rooms for dentists and doctors. My dentist has what used to be the main living room.

Over the past few weeks I had just completed a series of visits there in connection with some dental goings-on and I happened to mention this to a man I met last night. Conversation was pretty heavy going until I found out he was a dentist, so I sought to give him something to talk about by asking him if he knew my dentist.

* * *

"Oh, yes," he said. "I know him. He has his surgery in the famous Barretts of Wimpole Street house. You know . . . Elizabeth Barrett and her tragic love affair with Robert Browning. You must have seen the play or the film. Charles Laughton was terrific as her father . . ."

"That's the house where the Barretts lived?"

"Sure. Didn't you know?"

That was a fine thing, I must say. Here I had been going in and out of that house dozens of times over the past 27 years and nobody had ever told me—least of all my dentist—that the house had such famous associations.

My mind flashed back to when my sister was in a school performance of The Barretts of Wimpole Street and used to wander around our house rehearsing her big dramatic line—"I am so tired and disillusioned, papa."

It was probably in that very room where my dentist delved into my mouth that Elizabeth Barrett sat on her invalid couch with her dog, Flush, in her lap and received the Great Robert Browning and responded to the rantings of her autocratic father with "I am so tired and disillusioned, papa."

* * *

When I worked on Toronto's University avenue no newcomer was allowed to enter the area without being told that a few doors along was the house in which Mary Pickford was born. But that is not surprising, since Canada, being young, is pretty short on dwelling places of the famous. Here it would seem that they have so much history behind them that your dentist feels it hardly worth mentioning that his dental chair is in a famous room.

It might have helped me to overcome my dread of his drilling and his probing to ponder on the fact that in that very room Elizabeth Barrett Browning penned such lines as "If thou must love me, let it be for nought except love's sake alone . . ." and "Lips say 'God be pitiful,' who ne'er said 'God be praised'."

But I doubt it.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Few Operating Deaths

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation.

Many older persons can remember the day when quite a few patients died on the operating-table; and they know that today, with the great improvements in surgery and anesthesia, such accidents rarely happen.

Dr. Alvarez

I can remember well the days when I was young, when a cone made of newspaper and a towel was thoroughly moistened with ether, and then clapped down over the patient's face. Often the poor fellow fought desperately to get some air, and then sometimes he died of fright and shock.

Today, many an anesthetic is started with an intravenous injection of pentothal sodium, a barbiturate type of drug, and the patient is asleep before he or she knows it. There is no struggling or shock or discomfort. After that, if the operation is to be a big one, particularly if the abdominal cavity has to be opened and muscles have to be relaxed, the patient will be given a mixture of some gas and some ether.

In many cases, operations on the lower part of the body are done under spinal anesthesia. With this, an anesthetic drug is injected through a long needle into the canal around the nerves that come away from the lower end of the spinal cord. This type of anesthesia is particularly good for persons who have a chronic bronchitis and might get a pneumonia if given ether. Many minor operations, especially on the extremities, are done under either local or so-called block anesthesia. With a block anesthesia, all the nerves running to the area that is to be operated on are "blocked" by an injection of a drug such as procaine. An example of such blocking is well known to persons who have been to a dentist. By injecting an anesthetic into the neighborhood of the main nerve on the inner side of the lower jaw, he can get perfect anesthesia of the lower teeth on that side.

WORK DONE QUICKLY

Today, a good surgeon operates rapidly so that the patient is not long on the table. The main exceptions to this rule are in the field of brain surgery. Operations on the brain are often so difficult, and the problem of stopping all bleeding is so great, that several hours are needed in which to remove a tumor.

Recently I read an article by Drs. Kenneth M. Lewis and Edward G. Stanley-Brown of Columbia University, who surveyed the results of 11,705 operations performed in the last 11 years. In this series there were only 17 deaths in the operating-room, an incidence of 0.15 per cent. In only three of the 17 cases was the death due to a sudden stoppage of the heart.

This does not mean that many persons should talk themselves into operations or invite them, as so many do today. Because modern surgery is so wonderful, thousands of persons with a distressing neurosis or beginning insanity think that they can be cured over night by an operation. Sometimes, because of a previous depression, they know how trying a nervous break can be. Many a woman has said to me, "I just won't have another breakdown. This time you must find gallstones or something and take them out, so that I can be well right off." When, after an examination, I have to say that I could not find anything wrong in her abdomen, she may leave me in a disgusted mood, and may shop around until she finds someone whom she can talk into exploring her abdomen. Usually, this turns out to be unwise behavior.

NEEDLESS OPERATION

I often think of a patient I saw many years ago in San Francisco, a man who had always been abnormally anxious about his health. One day when he was about 60, he got an idea that, since he was going to Europe for a vacation, it would be a good thing to have his appendix out; then he would be safe. I told him I thought this very foolish because appendicitis is a rare disease in older people, but he went ahead and got a surgeon to operate.

Because he had long been a chain smoker, with a smoker's bronchitis, after the operation he got to coughing so violently that he broke open his wound. Back to the operating room he had to go to have the wound closed, and with the two operations, he was much weakened. Later, he had to go back to have a big rupture of the wound repaired. Again, he coughed so violently that he broke open the wound and again he had to go back to the operating-room. This time his heart did not stand the strain very well; one day it almost stopped beating, and he had a good look through the Pearly Gates.

Fortunately, he managed to get back some health, but when last saw him he had lost much of his old pep and joy in life and some of the spring out of his step. All because he insisted on having an operation that he did not need.

'General' Killed In Mau Mau Mop-Up

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—A terrorist leader, the self-styled "General" Rigathu, was killed Friday by Kikuyu guards in South Nyeri. Security forces killed 12 terrorists and captured seven others in the last 24 hours, they reported. Four surrendered, making 831 surrenders under amnesty terms due to expire July 10.

A WEBSTER CLASSIC

BODIES OF CONAN DOYLE, WIFE SECRETLY EXHUMED

CROWBOROUGH, England (UP)—Grave diggers sworn to secrecy exhumed the bodies of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and his wife today from an eerie, weed-grown garden where they had lain for 25 years and took them to a London undertaker.

Relatives of the author and spiritualist kept mum—all they would say was that exhumation certificates were issued by Home Secretary Maj. Gwilym Lloyd George.

The only immediate clue was that Windlesham House, Doyle's residence from 1907 until his death in 1930 at the age of 71, is for sale. Presumably the bodies were to be re-interred elsewhere.

Throughout the illness which preceded her death Lady Conan Doyle was comforted by what she believed were spirit messages from her husband.

Polish Wheat Loan To Be Paid in Year

Government Takes Responsibility, Says PM; Similar Loan to Czechs Repaid on Time

OTTAWA (CP) — Repayment is to be made within 12 months on a multi-million-dollar bank loan underwritten by the Canadian government by which Communist Poland will finance 85 per cent of a big wheat purchase from this country, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Friday.

Questioned in the Commons by opposition leader Drew, the prime minister said the deal has not been formally concluded but the government expects it will go through.

Mr. Drew asked Mr. St. Laurent to confirm or deny a Canadian Press report that 10,000,000 bushels of wheat would be sold to Poland for $19,000,000. The Iron Curtain country would make a down payment of $3,000,000, obtaining the remaining $16,000,000 in a Canadian bank loan guaranteed by the Canadian government.

Mr. St. Laurent and Finance Minister Harris said the loan is to be repaid within 12 months.

CZECH DEAL EARLIER

Asked by CCF leader Coldwell whether there has been any similar deal with Communist countries involving government guarantees the prime minister said there was one transaction with Czechoslovakia and "payment was duly made under the terms as agreed."

An informant said later Mr. St. Laurent referred to a sale of wheat to Czechoslovakia which was "substantial" but considerably smaller than the one being negotiated with Poland.

Mr. Drew asked whether the government would reconsider its decision, suggesting it would be more desirable to employ loans to sell wheat to friendly rather than Communist governments.

"As long as the government has the responsibility for administration," Mr. St. Laurent replied sharply, "it will take that responsibility and when it has made a decision it will not reconsider because the leader of the opposition suggests that it should.

"The government has the responsibility for making deals which it feels are in the interests of the Canadian economy. If it makes mistakes, it will submit to the consequences of those mistakes."

Mr. Drew asked whether there is any guarantee in a realizable form from Poland that the $16,000,000 loan will be repaid. Mr. St. Laurent said:

"There is no pledge of assets, but there is an undertaking to make the payment and we expect that undertaking will be carried out."

Mr. Coldwell said he thinks it is important that the government do everything, even to guaranteeing loans, to sell Canada's wheat surplus. Political complexion of a government with which Canada dealt should not interfere with trade relationships.

MING SUNG DISCUSSED

Mr. Drew asked what difference there is between the Polish deal and the Ming Sung transaction, under which he said the government stood to lose $13,000,000 in unreturned money it had guaranteed for construction of ships for a company in the Communist orbit.

Mr. St. Laurent replied by inserting a qualifying "yet" in Mr. Drew's words that the money has not been returned.

Seven motor vessels were built in Canada in 1947 for the Ming Sung Industrial Co. Ltd. with a $12,750,000 loan from Canadian banks being guaranteed by the Chinese Nationalist and Canadian governments. The ships fell into the hands of the Reds when they took over in China. The company and the Chinese government defaulted on payments in 1951 and the Canadian government was obliged to carry out its guarantee.

BENSON DOES IT AGAIN

Insulted Burmese Premier Receives Useless Present

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson mended his frayed relations with Burma Friday. He gave Prime Minister U Nu a top-drawer reception and appointed an official to take charge of politeness to important visitors in the future.

He even gave U Nu a tie clasp, which the premier accepted with a grateful smile, although he never wears a tie.

All this followed an international incident Thursday when U Nu walked out on Benson because he was kept cooling his heels for five minutes in an anteroom. The walkout sent agitated quivers through state department protocol circles.

But the prime minister accepted an invitation to return at 8.45 a.m. Friday, and this time Benson unrolled the red carpet. He and U Nu were closeted for half an hour, talking about crops and other things.

A crisp announcement from the agriculture department disclosed later that Assistant Secretary Robert D. McMillan now has a new title — protocol officer. He will handle all future dealings with prominent foreign visitors.

Moscow Receives Delegates of UEW

LONDON (Reuters) — The official Soviet news agency Tass announced the arrival in Moscow Friday of a delegation from the Canadian branch of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, CCL.

The delegation, led by Jefferson Harley, national organizer of the union, is visiting Russia at the invitation of the central committee of the Power Stations and Electrical Equipment Workers' Union.

Ratepayers Join Forces To Get Park, Beat Track

Association Prepared to Raise $10,000 for Park Development

Two Saanich ratepayers associations have joined forces to fight for the development of a provincial or inter-municipal park at Beaver Lake and against the establishment of a race track on the site.

This was the outcome of a lively public meeting at Royal Oak Thursday. Some 60 ratepayers were present.

The Elk Lake Ratepayers' Association accepted an offer from the Saanich Voters' Association to form a joint park committee to deal with the Beaver Lake issue. This will bring together a large group of citizens in the Mount Douglas-Cedar Hill and Beaver-Elk Lake districts.

The two groups plan an extensive campaign for a public park.

City Groups Promise Support

Ian Campbell, president of the Elk Lake Ratepayers' Association, said his group has been promised full support from several organizations in Victoria.

"You will be hearing more from these groups when the issue comes to a head," he said.

Mr. Campbell also said the association is prepared to raise a "minimum of $10,000 to assist in the development of a park in the district."

"The association is not against racing," said Mr. Campbell, "but we feel the whole of the Beaver Lake area should be reserved for the recreation of the people of Greater Victoria.

In a guarded statement, David Carey, secretary, assured the audience the provincial government is prepared to develop a park at Beaver Lake if the city dedicated the land to the parks department.

(Mr. Carey was a member of a committee which last week asked Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers if the government would develop a park on the site. The minister has not yet made an official reply.)

A letter was read from Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, which said he favored the development of a provincial park in the district. Such a park, Maj.-Gen. Pearkes said, would be an asset to the whole of South Vancouver Island.

Ald. Donald Smith, one of the principle speakers at the meeting, said he favored a referendum being submitted to the citizens of Victoria and Saanich for approval or rejection of the project.

Considerable Revenue Might Come

But he urged the audience to give careful consideration to the project which would include a park and exhibition. The contract, when finalized, he said, might bring considerable revenue to Saanich and the city.

"If it is a good idea I'm for it," he said, "but if it is just exploitation I'm against the project."

Mr. Smith said the project should be put up for tender if the people were in favor of the scheme.

A member of the audience asked the alderman if the track promoters had looked for an alternative site.

"Dear old Reeve Casey searched all around Saanich for a site for the track promotors," Ald. Smith replied. "I'm told the only suitable land they could find was Beaver Lake."

George Chatterton, trustee for school district 63, said it would be a "disgrace" if any of the land at Beaver Lake was alienated.

Mr. Chatterton said planning experts have estimated Greater Victoria will be short of parks land in 25 years. Furthermore, he added, it was the only property with suitable access for swimming and beaches.

"It is only seven miles from the centre of the city," he added. "We will never find another place like this."

Brahm Wiesman, director of the capital region planning board, was asked if the Beaver Lake site could hold both a race track and park.

"Let me answer this way," he said. "If none of the land is alienated you can have a better park with better facilities. That is only common sense."

Fluoridation Educational Plan Adopted

Doctors, Dentists Provide Speakers For Gatherings

A public education program on fluoridation was announced by acting city medical-health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffey Thursday at a meeting of the Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health.

She said a committee set up by Victoria medical and dental societies and public health workers will provide speakers chosen from the professions. They will address service clubs, chambers of commerce and parent-teacher associations.

She said the school board would also be asked to endorse the principle of fluoridation.

This was the proper procedure rather than submitting the question to referendum, she thought.

"I agree with the mayor in that I do not think it should come to a referendum. The average individual is not interested enough to study the issues and is not qualified to judge.

"If your health department and professional group say it is good, it should be accepted."

She added that the plan for speakers did not aim at encouraging public debates as the matter was "too deep" for audience participation.

School board representative to the board, Richard Reeve, only member not to support the recent board recommendation of fluoridation, said he still favored "a pure water supply."

REPORT ADOPTED

Dr. Mahaffey's report was adopted by the board.

Chairman, Esquimalt councillor G. K. Sammon stated, "On the basis of information we have received, we endorsed fluoridation. From here on in, it's a question of education. We have completed our duty."

The board received three letters regarding its projected meat inspection plans. Both Dr. G. F. Amyot, deputy minister of health and Health Minister Eric Martin said the matter of meat inspection as pertains to local production is receving government attention.

A letter from Esquimalt council suggested the proposed regulations submitted recently by the board should be revised. The matter was referred for study by Esquimalt and Victoria solicitors and the board sanitary inspector, E. Gropp.

The board endorsed a recommendation by Mr. Gropp that future use of the Memorial Arena parking area by carnivals be denied due to lack of rest room facilities for people attending the shows.

Dr. W. W. McLuhan will speak on "Fluordination" at a meeting of Kiwanis Club, Victoria North, in the Monterey Restaurant, Tuesday at 6.15. Dr. McLuhan is a chairman of the Victoria Dental Society committee on fluordination.

ART in REVIEW

By COLIN GRAHAM

As those of you will know who have followed the art gallery's relations with the City Council these last four years, we have worked steadily and consistently to obtain the same kind of civic financial aid that other galleries in Canada are accustomed to receiving. Sometimes when one is closely involved with things such as these there is a tendency to take for granted the notion that one's basic assumptions are shared and understood by everyone.

We have always automatically assumed that the only justification a gallery can have in asking for support from public funds is that its aim is to make all its programs and services available to every citizen in the community either free or at the lowest possible charge. Even without civic aid we have managed to reach some of our objectives, thanks largely to the generosity of private citizens.

For instance (I wonder if this fact is as widely known as it ought to be) every citizen whose Sunday afternoons are free can enjoy without charge all the 40 or so exhibitions that the gallery offers each year.

Our classes for all children over four are available at less than cost, and a number of our evening programs are offered on a similar basis. When the gallery does go out after funds, as in its requests to the municipal councils or in such devices as its recent rummage sale, it is making up the deficit created by its less-than-cost offerings.

For the progress we have made during the past 12 months we have the pleasure of thanking many good friends who have come to our aid. It now seems certain, unless I entirely misread the situation, that we shall receive from the City of Victoria this year a grant-in-aid of $3,100, though perhaps only after a mayoral veto has run its allotted span of 30 days.

IMPRESSIVE BRIEF

We remember particularly in this connection the public-spirited men and women of the Parent - Teachers' Association who went to so much trouble to prepare and present to the various municipal councils an impressive brief on the position of the gallery and the symphony.

Realizing, too, the extraordinary volume and variety of public business with which our aldermen and municipal councillors must deal at each of their meetings, we are most grateful for the fact that so many of them have taken a good deal of time and trouble to go into the details of the gallery's situation in order to reach a seasoned judgment of its requests.

It has been heartening to find lately that in the City Council seven out of the eight aldermen have announced their support of the $3,100 grant. We owe a great debt, too, to certain aldermen and municipal councillors for being prepared to undergo a good deal of personal inconvenience in the process of championing our cause.

Let us hope that next year the symphony will be as lucky as the gallery, and that more people will come to recognize the great contribution it is making both to the pleasure of Victorians and the good name of the city abroad.

BACK IN ACTION

The Circle in the Square, which resumed on the old site in Greenwich Village three weeks ago after more than a year of inactivity because the fire department closed the premises, struck out with its first production but is going right ahead with another.

"The King and the Duke," built around episodes in "Huckleberry Finn," was the reopener that failed to catch on. The new one is Eric Bentley's English version of the famous Arthur Schnitzler play, "Reigen," now know by the French title, "La Ronde." It will be recalled that the French movie version caused a censorship squabble in New York state a couple of years back. It consists of 10 amatory episodes.

The Circle's home has been redone to conform with fire law requirements.

AUDREY SAYS

By AUDREY ST.D JOHNSON

While it has come to the point now, where Mayor Harrison's resistance to any civic support for cultural organizations, is clearly seen as a mulish personal prejudice kept in dominance by bull-dozer terrorist tactics, the Art Gallery at least seems assured of recognition.

Audrey

Recently a more informed and liberal-minded attitude has taken hold in three out of four council chambers with regard to the gallery.

But I have been so much at a loss to understand the unanimous and even inimical thumbs-down on the Victoria Symphony that I have gone to some trouble in an attempt to get at the root of this—so far as I know—unparalleled attitude.

If anyone takes what follows as a personal expression of opinion or an unwarrented meddling, I can only say they have entirely misconstrued the intention of this article.

ANSWERS CULLED

The remarks are purely objective, culled from answers to questions and comments overheard. Thye are set down here merely in the hope of crystallizing a frame of mind that inhabits a pretty large section of the musically-inclined public.

First, from the too general ignorance concerning the part played by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra along community lines, I would suggest that a better public relations deal needs to be set up to keep the public informed constantly of the value of the orchestra to this city.

Repeatedly I have heard the accusation that the orchestra is the pet and prerogative of a moneyed and intellectually snobbish minority and at no point touches the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen; that it gives away nothing and provides no service for students, as does the Art Gallery. Also that there are too many "social doings" attached to it and that its running expenses could and should be reduced to meet available funds!

There are the fullest possible answers to each of these misapprehensions, of course, though some are such unthinking nonsense they barely seem to warrant the favor of an answer. Yet if there are people thinking and talking along these lines, airing such total ignorance—and disseminating it to a certain extent—then, I repeat, there is real need of a more vigorous public relations set-up than the orchestra has at the present time.

FEW HUNDRED PER CENTERS

Secondly, in this city, as in any other, there is admittedly a low percentage of those whom one might describe as 100 per cent listeners or perhaps, for want of a better term, ultra music lovers. They are the people to whom only the quality of the music and its performance matters. No other lure is needed to get them inside a concert hall.

The gradations of intensity from this centre are many and include an extremely large section which could undoubtedly be won over as symphony supporters, given the right circumstances. The circumstances for these musical non-purists—and they are no less valuable for being so—require a degree of showmanship as a catalyst for their assimilization of symphonic music.

Among items that have been mentioned to me most frequently are these: There is no premonitory thrill in watching musicians wander onto the empty dimmed stage in twos and threes. Why cannot the curtain be put to use so that the complete orchestra will be revealed upon its opening?

Why cannot risers be used to make back ranks of players visible, so adding to the interest of the performance?

It is complained that the whole assemblage, with their black garb and sober mien, give the impression that music is a deadly serious business. (Which apparently implies dullness to the non-academic mind).

FRUSTRATED

Another sore point seems to be the "no encore" tradition.

"When you go to a concert and the music is largely unfamiliar," one man told me, "you may appreciate the fact that the performance is good but you always hope the encores will provide a chance to hear such good work on the comparative basis of a known composition. So when this anticipation is frustrated you go home feeling just that!"

I have kept for the last the final accusation, for even though it is the reverse of my own opinion, it is "lese majeste" and likely to turn the printer's ink a shameful scarlet.

However and so-be-it, a wide body of opinion holds that our symphony programs in general persist too solidly in the scholarly climate of the late 17th and 18th centuries!

Summing up, the theme seems to be: Why not at least an occasional pops program — good music but recognizable; more visual appeal—and ENCORES!

All of which is presented in the path of duty, as factual reporting and in the desire to see the Victoria Symphony Orchestra cast its influence over the furthest tentative music-lover on the fringes of the great circle.

STILL MORE BARD

With the signing of Leora Dana for the role of Portia, wife of Brutus, the American Shakespeare Festival has completed casting of the major roles for its premiere production of "Julius Caesar," scheduled to take place at is Shakespeare Festival Theatre, in Stratford, Conn., on July 12.

Hokanson Plays At Banff School

RANDOLPH HOKANSON

Guest artists who will appear on programs at the Banff School of Fine Arts this summer, include a Seattle pianist who is well known in Victoria where he has played as soloist with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and also as recitalist.

He is Randolph Hokanson, who was formerly a protege of the late Mrs. J. O. Cameron and who, in recent years, has concertized in Europe and appeared at Town Hall in New York.

Lifetime of Viewing Provides Yardstick

Every now and then a reader will telephone or write us asking what our yardstick is when rating the films in our Two for the Show column.

The only answer to this, of course, would seem to be the fine pictures we have had the good fortune to witness over a lifetime of viewing the films.

With this in mind, therefore, we thought it might interest you to know what we do consider to be the top films of our life. Here they are (although not necessarily in the order listed) under their various headings:

DRAMA

1. Charlie Chaplin's "The Gold Rush" (other Chaplin films could be placed in this category as well).
2. Robert Donat's beautiful "Good-Bye, Mr. Chips."
3. "Green Pastures" — which somehow seemed to lend the meaning of The Trinity new significance.
4. Joan Crawford's brilliant "Mildred Pierce."
5. "Cimarron."
6. "The Quiet Man."
7. "Ben Hur." We speak of the moving silent version with Ramon Navarro.
8. "Cavalcade."
9. "Gone With the Wind."
10. "The Browning Version."
11. "In Which We Serve."
12. "Mrs. Miniver."
13. "Best Years of Our Lives."
14. "The Little Kidnappers."
15. "On the Waterfront."
16. "From Here to Eternity."
17. "East of Eden."
18. "Pygmalian."
19. "Going My Way."
20. "Grand Hotel."

CLASSICS

1. "Tales of Hoffman."
2. "Red Shoes" (the memorable film that shot England's ballerina Moira Shearer to fame).
3. Sir Laurence Olivier's "Hamlet," for which he won an Academy Award.
4. Sir Laurence's "Henry V," for which he should have won an Acamedy Award.
5. Hollywood's "Julius Caesar."

WESTERNS

1. "The Covered Wagon."
2. "High Noon."
3. "The Gun Fighter."
4. "Stagecoach."
5. "Shane."

COMEDIES

1. Harold Lloyd's clean, keen comedies such as "Grandma's Boy" and "Safety Last."
2. "It Happened One Night."
3. "One Embarrassing Night."
4. "The Awful Truth."
5. "The Thin Man." (We mean the first of the series that starred William Powell and Myrna Loy."

MUSICALS

1. "Alexander's Ragtime Band."
2. "The Great Ziegfeld."
3. "One Night of Love"—that shot the late Grace Moore to fame.
4. "Sunshine Susie."
5. "Gay Divorcee," the first in the lengthy Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers' musicals.
6. "42nd Street," the film that started the wave of musicals in 1932 that were destined to last until today and no doubt forever.
7. "Anchors Aweigh."
8. "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers."
9. "Broadway Melody."
10. "The Coconuts," the first of the films that starred the great Marx Brothers.

Butchart Gardens, Symphony Awaiting Weatherman's Word

It won't be long now before you'll be invited to go out to Butchart Gardens to hear the out-door summer symphony concerts. There is a little delay this year. The weatherman is way behind in his job. He is feeling very badly about his abominable laxity, and promised to get caught up forthwith. We'll be ready as soon as he is, and we'll let you know when he tells us that he has caught up with the rainmakers and put them away in solitary confinement and incommunicado for the duration of the Butchart Gardens symphony season. The only storm you are likely to hear—not feel—will be the graphic but harmless representation of one in Beethoven's Pastorale Symphony.

All of us who have had a hand in presenting these Butchart Gardens symphony concerts are not unaware that there is much room for improvement in various directions. This will be the third summer since they were first begun. Many valuable lessons have been learned from the experience of the first two summers. When such a thing is first undertaken, even with the most careful planning, the first attempt or two must necessarily be in the nature of an experiment, there being no precedents by which one can be guided. But now we do have the first two, and the most difficult, seasons behind us. I think you will find things proceeding with greater dispatch this year. You have every right to expect now the whole organization to be less experimental.

PRESENTS PROBLEMS

The same goes for the actual musical quality of the playing by the Orchestra. It must be obvious to you, even before I mention it, that out-door playing presents problems which are never encountered inside a concert-hall; and these rather great problems one can only learn to cope with after one has had some first-hand experience with them. The most serious of these problems is the effect of the open-air atmosphere (meteorologically speaking) has on the instruments themselves.

The constant changes in humidity, in temperature, plays havoc with the intonation of the metal and string instruments. They are tuned carefully one minute, and the next they are hopelesly out of tune with themselves. Even the best musician must learn to "temper" an instrument which is inherently out of tune, and that takes simply experience in playing out-doors, and many disconcerting instances of carefully aiming at one note only to find that another one emerges.

Within the Orchestra, we have long since admitted to ourselves that the quality of our out-door playing has been somewhat less than melifluously, smoothly, soothingly perfect. But we are hopeful that we have learned at least something about this the past two summers. All in all, those of us concerned about putting on the Butchart Gardens concerts look upon the forthcoming ones as something of a fresh start—somewhat wiser, though not sadder, nor less bold—for our past experiences. See you out there soon.

IN SEATTLE IN JULY

Mary Fickett, the Cinderella who made good in the starring role of "Tea and Symphony" for the past four months, will head the national company of the Robert Anderson play for two engagements in Portland, Ore., and Seattle, in July. The local run ended June 25, making her available to replace the touring star, Deborah Kerr, whose contract ends July 9.

"Tea and Sympathy" will have had a 91-week run when it closes here.

Parents Blamed For Wrong Spirit In Music Festival

HALIFAX, N.S. June 29 (BUP)—Doting parents overanxious to see their youngsters win at music festivals across Canada were sharply criticized yesterday by Reg. Hugo of Winnipeg, president of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals.

He told the group's annual meeting that friendly competition and not fierce rivalry should keynote all music festivals.

"Part of our job is to see that rivalry is discouraged and competition used only as a means to pace one another on the road to excellence," Hugo said. "Parents and adults generally are the chief offenders to this spirit.

"The normal, healthy youngster responds favorably and successfully to the challenge of competition, and if he fails to do so it will usually be found that some misguided adult is exerting an undue and improper influence."

Hard-Cover Novel Jeopardized By Boom in Paper-Backed Books

Canadian Authors Admonished, Warned By Several Speakers at Convention

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Montreal novelist Constance Beresford-Howe said Monday night the growing media of paper-back books is threatening the future of the novel.

Addressing a convention of the Canadian Authors' Association at Queen's University, she said sales of paper-back books are leaving those of hard-cover novels far behind.

Others on a panel of publishers and authors voiced similar fears. Cecil Eustace of the J. M. Dent Company agreed entertainment fiction was threatened by the new media. But he said he doubted serious fiction would be threatened.

Col. C. F. Stacey, historian for the department of national defence, said the current quality of writing is generally low. He wished authors of creative non-fiction would do more research rather than turn out "just bad history."

He told the authors "sex is not news" and will not sell a $3 or $4 novel.

"Unless you know what you are about—unless you know that your book calls for it and to just what degree—leave it alone," he said.

He also warned against:

Ghost writing—"the person who can write a worthwhile book will not be content, except in special circumstance, to warm over other people's stories."

Writing to conform with a trend—"if a writer decides he has spotted a trend and starts to write a book to meet it, he will almost certainly come too late to market."

Writing books on strictly current topics—"they usually fail as news, which magazines, radio and newspapers will cover much more fully and probably more brightly."

DR. E. J. PRATT, former professor of English at the University of Toronto, has been elected honorary president of the Canadian Authors' Association. Dr. Pratt was elected to fill the post made vacant by the death of B. K. Sandwell, the well-known Canadian journalist.

Writers Responsible To Unspoiled Audience

WINNIPEG (CP)—Responsibility of writers of children's plays "to a sensitive and unspoiled audience" was stressed by Sara Spencer of Kentucky at the annual meeting of the Winnipeg Children's Theatre Association. "Teach the children to believe in the world he lives in," she said.

Canadian Author-Naturalist Pioneers Important Market

Book on Extinct Bird Receives High Praise; To Be Included in Readers' Digest Volume

With the help of an extinct bird species, Toronto author Fred Bodsworth has pioneered a new market for Canadian writers.

Mr. Bodsworth's novel, "Last of the Curlews," was purchased this month by Reader's Digest for inclusion in the autumn volume of Reader's Digest Condensed Books. This is the first time that a book by a Canadian author has been accepted for use in a Condensed Book Volume.

Illustrated by another Canadian—T. M. Shortt of the Royal Ontario Museum—"Last of the Curlews" tells of the flight of a lone survivor of the once numerous species, from the tip of South America to its nesting grounds in the arctic, and graphically illustrates how its inability to learn to fear, coupled with greedy and shortsighted hunting methods have combined to obliterate a species as remarkable as the precariously surviving whooping crane.

Both the beauty of the story-presentation and illustration and the knowledge of natural history it reveals have received high praise in Canada and the United States since its publication in March, 1955.

Mr. Bodsworth is an associate editor of Maclean's Magazine in Toronto. He is a director of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists and an active supporter of its conservation program.

LONDON (AP)—An unidentified Australian collector Monday bought a United States five-cent postage stamp, made by hand in 1846, for £1,500. The stamp was issued by the postmaster of Millbury, Mass., a year before the general issue of stamps in the United States.

About Bridge For Experts

MONEY BRIDGE, by Edward Mayer, McClelland & Stewart Ltd., Toronto.

Over a period of years bridge players who follow the advice of Edward Mayer in his 258-page book about "Money Bridge" will form a definite opinion of its value. In the meantime it looks like a noteworthy contribution to the volumes written on the subject.

"Do not read this book unless you wish to win," they say.

It is the first book on contract to be published for 20 years which is expressly designed for rubber, instead of tournament bridge.

The author talks with authority. He had been acknowledged one of the first dozen players in Europe, possibly in the world at both duplicate and rubber bridge.

The book is not primarily for reader back to first principles in order to develop the main theme—the maintenance of re-beginners, but it takes the lentless pressure against opponents by means of timing.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

The latest addition to Utopian literature to reach this desk is Lin Yutang's Looking Beyond, yet another version of what can lie in store for mankind after another war or two.

This business of peering into the post-atomic war state is getting to be a very fashionable exercise indeed, but so far it seems to me it is quite likely that most of the prognosticators are way off the mark. Certainly I can have little faith in the kind of Utopia which the Chinese doctor envisages in Looking Beyond.

In the first place, the title is a gross misnomer. "Looking Back" would have been a good deal more accurate for that is what the author does. By a threadbare stratagem—plane forced down on a remote island—he places two citizens in the year 2004 into a civilization which has been founded by a Greek professor who was tired of atomic wars and therefore set up his own kind of Utopia. What the 20th-century Greek—name of Laos—established was something not too unlike the golden age of the Greek city state with a few modern frills and a nod to democracy and a salting of Confucius.

The result makes pleasant enough reading, but if anyone should get to wishing that things might really turn out that way he is most certainly on the wrong track for, surely, the one thing we can be certain about is that any future good world will not be brought about by attempting to return to any particular "good old days"—not even the golden age of Greece.

Somehow, it seems to me that the Utopian writers of this century are a pretty bankrupt crew. Two hundred years ago when a writer took pen in hand and let his imagination run wild, the Utopia he attempted to create was one which was fantastically better than mankind had ever known or, perhaps, even dreamed of. Today, that optimistic projection seems to be almost killed off entirely. Now when a writer—like Dr. Lin Yutang—wants to create a picture of how lovely everything could be, he turns a nostalgic eye backwards.

Sated By Dime-A-Dozen Miracles

Part of this could be that we, living in this scientific age, are sated with miracles. Electronic brains, nuclear power, to say nothing of commonplaces like television, come a dime a dozen and it's no easy task for today's writer to dream up any new materialistic miracles.

But another reason why our dreamers are looking back is, I suspect, that even they are afraid to look forward. No matter how lively the imagination, we are so conditioned to the fearful approach that we have difficulty projecting any kind of future except one that is full of atomic and totalitarian terror.

This, my friends, is utterly defeatist thinking and it bodes no good for us if even our most creative writers cannot see anything ahead that is positively optimistic.

For this reason "Looking Beyond" has been, for me, one of the most discouraging experiences I have had for some time. It scared me far, far more than, say, Orwell's "Nineteen Eighty Four" because if our dreamers are bankrupt what have we left?

Picture Books Ease Summer Simmer

Summer is almost upon us—next week will be the time for our annual summer reading compendium—and with it comes lazy reading. For this there are two or three recent picture books which should fill the bill admirably.

The most serious of them is a volume got together by the editors of Year called "Your Lifetime in Pictures." This is a fascinating pictorial record of the last 55 years, plus a text which runs to a good 10,000 words. For my money, by far the most interesting part of this book was that the editors attempted to pick out the people of this century who have shaped our era. The main ones are Edison and Einstein; Churchill, Lenin, Stalin, Roosevelt and Wilson; Henry Ford; Ghandi and Schweitzer; Eugene O'Neill and Picasso. It's an interesting exercise to see who you would add to the list or who you would omit. Personally, I think the editors were pretty smart.

Then there's "Churchill: His Life in Pictures," which has been already mentioned in this space and is just what the title says. Only comment I have to add is that the pictures are unusually well reproduced for such a volume.

And finally, for those who are devotees, there is "The Pogo Peek-a-Book," Walt Kelly's latest addition to cartoon sense and nonsense which will not disappoint any of the loyal followers.

And these should keep you from any hard reading for a day or two.

OLD AND THE NEW

Story of Adjustment In Canadian Community

CARDINAL ROAD, by Evelyn Weller, Burns and MacEacheron, Toronto, 254 pages ($3.50).

Although the plot revolves primarily around the two chief characters, Garth Cardinal and his wife, Linda, this book is the story of the people who live on Cardinal Road in a small Canadian town.

Peopled in the early days by a well-to-do English family who emigrated from their homeland in 1851, the district soo nbecame a thriving community. As their children grew up and married they settled on the same street. Gradually the old houses became interspersed with newer homes, and the old tree-lined street became more crowded.

The isolation and snobbery established there by Col. Cardinal and his wife gradually gave way before the influx of a new generation and differences in education, race and religion began to disappear.

There are a great many characters in this excellent story of adjustment and it is a worthy successor to Evelyn Weller's previous book, "Wings of the Spirit."

Champions Tell How Spirit Brought Success

FAITH MADE THEM CHAMPIONS, edited by N. V. Peale, Prentice Hall Inc. New York, 270 pages, $3.95.

This is a book which will appeal to anyone interested in sport. It contains the story behind many of the spectacular feats which have stirred the world but is not concerned so much with the feats themselves as the spirit which inspired the performers.

It consists of a selection of stories published originally in the magazine Guideposts, by Perry Como, Joel McCrae, Frances Marion, Gene Tunney, Babe Ruth and others.

The argument is presented that spirit rather than a healthy body triumphed over almost insurmountable obstacles.

The last section, "Projects of Ordinary Youth," should bring hope and understanding to those who think modern youth is feeble and "sissy."

"Faith Made Them Champions" is not a book to be given a cursory glance. It should be read carefully by young and old with the faith which inspired its editor, N. V. Peale, who merits the thanks of all thoughtful people.—C.A.

War's Shambles

Storm Jameson creates a seething corner of a world of uneasy peace and men tormented by conscience and memories in "The Hidden River" (Harper).

Miss Jameson not only offers an excellent drama but strips to essentials the range of emotions that disturb Europe's men and women who strive for meaning in the shambles that war left . . .

"The Black Black Hearse" by Frederic Freyer (St. Martin's Press) is a first class suspense thriller describing the international adventures of an independent movie company that accepted the backing of an "angel" who, if not fallen, had definitely slipped.

Writers' Function In Society Today Discussion Subject

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—A new kind of literary conference is scheduled for late July at Queen's University here.

Selected writers and publishers are being invited to discuss the writer's function in society; to examine the nature of book publishing as compared with other types of communication, and to consider the influence of mass media—such as radio and TV—on book reading.

The Rockefeller Foundation is sponsoring the conference set for July 28-31. Among writers expected to take part are A. J. M. Smith, Montreal poet and teacher; Morley Callaghan, Toronto novelist; Northrop Frye, Toronto teacher and critic; John Gray and S. P. Pike, publishers; R. D. Hilton Smith, librarian; Robertson Davies, novelist, playwright and newspaper editor; and Andrew Allan, radio drama producer.

A Tight Field Heads for the Wire

Longshot Perkasus, right, leads the field down to the wire in the first race of the opening harness racing meet at Sandown Park, Sidney, Friday afternoon. Perkasus won easily from Gayle B., second from right, and Wire Edge, left. The race marked the opening of harness racing for six days at the Sidney track. The meet will continue all next week. $16,000 Bets Welcome Return of Horse Races

Horse racing came back to the Greater Victoria area Friday after an absence of eight years and was warmly welcomed by upwards of 3,000 who attended the opening of a six-day harness race meeting at the new Sandown Park layout at Sidney.

It was the first glimpse of the trotters and pacers in the Victoria area since the early 20th century, and the first racing of any kind since 1946.

FINE WEATHER

In sunny, shirt-sleeve weather that dispelled an earlier threat of rain, the punters laid out $15,809 in the pari-mutuels on eight races and two quinella pools.

In the featured eighth race, a one-mile free-for-all for a purse of $400, the favorite Captain King lost his first race of the year as long-shot Clatawa Brewer, owned by P. D. Kent and M. Woodhouse of Tulare, California, took command in the stretch and won driving over Orvy C.

Captain King, second all the way behind Orvy C, faded at the final turn and finished fifth. Clatawa Brewer paid $9.00 to win and $4.00 to place in the second best win price of the meet. The time of 2 minutes 10 3-5th seconds was the fastest mile run in Canada this year.

Longest price of the day was in the first race when Perkasus breezed in to pay $25.30 to win and $5.70 to place. After that until the feature, favorites and near-favorites ran in the money in close finishes.

Biggest pay-off of the day was the quinella price in the sixth race, Chips Dal Yum and June Vonian running one-two to pay $101.70.

There was one spill, Lynford Woollen going down in the stretch in the third race. Both horse and driver were uninjured.

Donahue Hurls Farmers to 14th Victory

Left-hander Don Donahue doled out six hits Thursday night in pitching Farmer Construction to a 14-3 victory over Capitals in Senior Amateur Baseball League action.

It was Farmers' 14th straight victory without a loss in league action.

Frank Graham started for the losers but was lifted in favor of Herb Weatherall in the third.

Farmers picked up 14 hits and broke out for six runs in the fifth inning. Darkness forced calling of the game after six innings.

Rotary Parlays Walks To Beat N. Kiwanis

That ancient offensive manouevre, the base on balls, gave Rotary two runs in the last of the sixth inning and a harrowing 11-10 victory over North Kiwanis in American Little League action at Little League Park Friday afternoon.

Rotary went ahead, 9-8, with a big inning tied the score at 9-9 with a big seven-run fifth inning and allowed North Kiwanis to score one run before taking the win in the last of the sixth.

Bob Anderson, who took over in the fifth, issued the fatal walks and took the loss. Paul Pearce was the winner. Bob Holness of North Kiwanis hit two for three to lead the batters.

Gyros had too much power in taking the win from Odd Fellows, scoring in every inning but the fifth. Ken Heal with four for five led the 14-hit attack on two Odd Fellows pitchers. Larry Wood pitched five hit ball for the victory.

Thursday, Lions beat Oak Bay Kiwanis, 14-12, in National Little League action, while Esquimalt dumped Yarrows, 5-2, in Esquimalt Little League.

THIRD OF A LENGTH

UBC Oarsmen Lose to Penn

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, Eng. (CP) — The University of Pennsylvania eight defeated University of British Columbia by a third of a length today to win the Grand Challenge Cup, major trophy of the Royal Henley Regatta.

The winning time for the one-mile, 55-yard course was six minutes, 56 seconds.

The Canadians, who upset the favored Russians in the semi-finals Friday, were bidding to bring the Challenge Cup to Canada for the first time.

The husky Vancouver crew made a terrific spurt in the last hundred yards but Pennsylvania rose to the occasion and clung doggedly to its slight lead.

PENN KEPT LEAD

The boats were never more than a few feet apart but from start to finish the Pennsylvanians were slightly in front.

The race was run under ideal weather conditions. A variable wind rippled the waters slightly.

The Canadians had hoped for more rugged water, being accustomed to it in British Columbia.

A great crowd at Henley's final day cheered the Canadians loudly and there was no doubt they were the favorites with the British spectators.

But the sporting crowd gave the Pennsylvanians polite applause, and at the boat tent there was great laughter and shouting as the Pennsylvanians threw J. L. de Gurse, their coxswain, into the Thames.

The Americans went into the final as favorites despite the sensational Canadian victory Friday over the Russian eight which was defending the championship won for the first time a year ago by Soviet oarsmen.

DROP STROKE

Almost immediately the Americans dropped their rate to as low as 30 while the Canadians kept up their rate.

The Americans, rowing more powerfully, established a half-length lead at the quarter-mile mark and increased this to half a length at the half mile.

The Canadians spurted as they neared the half distance and with both stroking at 32, the Penn lead was cut to a canvas.

Pennsylvania spurted as they neared the mile mark and built up its lead to half a length again but Vancouver, stroking at 36, closed the gap to two feet with only 500 yards to go.

Both crews put on a grandstand finish in front of the packed spectators' enclosures. But hard as the sturdy Thunderbird crew tried, it could not catch the Americans.

Maroons Win Again In Girls' Lacrosse

Maroons of the girls' lacrosse league scored their seventh straight victory Thursday when they edged Golds, 6-5, at Stevenson Park.

Tight Games Feature in Babe Ruth Ball

The decisions were close in the Pony League double-header played at Carnarvon Park Friday afternoon.

In the first game, Mawson-Gage outlasted Rotary, 9-7, while Victoria Police dumped Rotary again, 2-1, in the nightcap.

In the first game, Fred Coe of Mawson-Gage hit the first Pony League homer of the year, a three-run blast in the third inning. The second contest was a pitcher's duel, Collier striking out 14 to take the win and Balloch whiffing 11 in defeat.

There was no Babe Ruth League action Friday. Thursday UCT overpowered Tillicums, 17-1.

Youngster Tops Field With Sub-Par 200 Score

By BILL WALKER

VANCOUVER—Signs of the times certainly were in evidence here Friday as Dow Finsterwald of Bedford Heights, Ohio, took the lead at the 54-hole mark of the $15,000 B.C. Open Golf Tournament.

Finsterwald, a 25-year-old professional, fired a seven-under-par 65 for a 54-hole mark of 200 and seems a cinch to break the Shaughnessy Club record for 72 holes of 269 in today's final round.

A relative youngster in the field of veteran campaigners one would expect to find dominating a tournament of this nature, Finsterwald, despite his brilliance—a 67 and a 68 on the first two days of the tournament—serves best to exemplify the place the young crop of gold trailers currently hold on the PGA circuit.

Another is Bob Rosburg, the chunky Stanford University graduate, who led until today with a 36-hole score of 132. Rosburg bumped into difficulty, if a two-under-par 70 can be called difficulty, to revert to the runner-up position with a total for 54 holes of 202.

To further emphasize the trend that is taking place, third place is owned by Bud Holscher, a 24-year-old slender stylist from Santa Monica, Calif., who blazed home with his second successive five-under-par round of 67 to hold third place at 204.

After these three came the "Old Guard"—Tommy Bolt, an affable and far from cantankerous fellow, probably because of a 68 Friday and a 54-hole card of 205; the veteran Sam Snead, the picture player from tee to green, with a 69 and a 206 total; Mike Fetchik, a virtual unknown with a 69 and at the same total as Snead; and Ted Kroll, who also fashioned a sub-par round of 68 for 207.

One stroke back at 207 was Marty Furgol, with a three-under 69 Friday for a 207 total, and Mike Souchak, the ex-footballer, whose 71 Friday followed two previous 68s.

Headliners Lose Gallery

The gallery of 4,000 paid, largest to witness a golf event in Vancouver, started with the threesome of Snead, Souchak and Rosburg, but suddenly found their attention diverted to Finsterwald and Holscher.

Finsterwald, "the 'Dow' stands for 'Dow', nothing else," started with a birdie at the 575-yard first hole, reaching the green in two blows, was three under at the turn, and rammed in four more birdies on the back nine. He had successive threes on the par four 14th, 15th and 16th holes. He missed only two greens in the round, coolly dropping home a five-foot putt on the 18th when it seemed he might bogey his only hole.

He birdied four of the first five holes, going over on the 438-yard par four second, and finished the first nine with a birdie three to be four under with 33 the best front-nine score of the day. He then went six under with a birdie four on the 515-yard par five 11th, and a birdie three on the 270-year par four 12th. In all he had seven birdies, by the 12th his second bogey came at the short 17th to leave him four strokes off the pace.

Rosburg Drops to Second

The first day leader, Rosburg, who defies tradition and style with a baseball grip, was slightly erratic, at least as erratic as a sub-par 70 can be. While Snead, ever the stylist, was all that has been said of him on the greens despite a three-under 69.

He three-putted from 14 feet on the 500-yard fifth after reaching the green in two, and he again three putted for a bogey five on the 409-yard seventh.

Slightly wild at times, Souchak received one stroke of fortune when his second shot on the fourth hit a spectator on the head and bounced back to the apron of the green when it appeared the ball might go out of bounds.

Bolt, the tempestuous fellow, who is supposed to eat writers for breakfast, saved his best arguments for the back nine at Shaughnessy but not before he had threatened to break par into little pieces early in his round.

Double Bogey Irks Bolt

Three under at the end of four holes, he had reason to toss his club angrily to the ground on the fifth when he took a double bogey six and more reason to sneer at a well-wisher on the seventh when he took a bogey five. But coming home, he berated nothing but the ball with a four under par 31, topped off by three successive birdies on the 10th, 11th and 12th for a final 68.

Few followed Stan Leonard, last year's champion, who took a 75, for a 54-hole total of 217, or Chuck Congdon, a five-time winner of the event, who has the same total as Leonard. Bill Mawhinney, often the darling of Vancouver fans, was a forgotten man also with his 74 for a 219.

Leading the Canadian pros are Fred Wood, of the host Shaughnessy club, and Bob Wylie of Calgary. Wood had a 72 for a 211 total; Wylie had a 70 for the same total.

Victoria's Bob Fleming has "never played so badly" with rounds of 80-75-77—232.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

VANCOUVER—Tommy Bolt was talking. Yes, he does talk to reporters, and anybody else who cares to listen.

This is the same Tommy Bolt who gets more ink than he does birdies and that's saying a lot. And the same Tommy Bol who is supposed to snarl at reporters and then deny having seen the fellows when his snarls get into print.

But anyway, Tommy Bot was talking.

"Golf," he says, "is two different games."

"One game is from tee to green; that's 'golf'; the other game is on the green; that's 'putting'."

"And you can't tell me any different," he mouthed between two bites of half a ham sandwich, which apparently is his par for the lunch course.

"Both games are absolutely different."

Walker

"That guy murders the game until he reaches the green, and then 'bang', he rams the ball in the cup. He's so bold the ball goes 'pop' every time it hits the hole. And look at his hands when he grips the club at other times. There's almost an inch showing between them. The only reason he scores, is because he plays the other game well, 'putting'. See what I mean.

"Me, sure I get mad and maybe chew a couple of guys' ears off now and then. Why shouldn't I? This is my business, and I'll run my business any way I want."

Bolt's business being golf—a 205 total entering today's final round of the B.C. Open, second place in the U.S. Ryder Cup standings at present, and fifth place among the leading money winners, his achievements of the present—it seems the fellow may be right. Certainly he plays well, if not more sensitively than he allows his feelings to be expressed.

Tardy Clark Bemoans Fate

But this was lunch with Bolt, Bo Wininger and Jimmy Clark the latter being the fellow who fired a 66 opening day, slept in the next morning and had nothing to do but talk in the afternoon.

Of his "sleep" Clark said: "Anybody else but Clark and they would have been allowed to take a two-stroke penalty and continue. But it's me. So here I am.

Further queries seemed to bear out this fact that if any wrist slapping was ot be done, Clark was to get it first. And this after a round in which Clark never went over fours. "So be it," he said, summonsing the waiter once more.

Scenes like Ted Colgate and Ken Lawson of Victoria, getting in on a free lesson to Jim Tom Blair by Bo Winninger . . . A crowd of a hundred or so watching Sam Snead drop balls within a 25-foot radius of his caddy. Mike Souchak literally pulverizing the ball for the edification of many . . . Watching Souchak driving the 270-yard 12th hole and the missing an eagle by half an inch. . . Snead splitting the flag on the 160-yard 10th, the ball landing a few inches from the hole on a direct line and kicking back about four feet . . . and so on. . .

But really you have to see Snead to appreciate the fellow. . . He hits the ball with a three-quarter swing, and five times out of ten splits the flag on his approach. 'Nuff said about his putting. He's better from 20 feet than he is from six feet in.

Rosburg Unusual — But Effective

Rosburg is the opposite. He has a definite awkward style, but he gets results. He is the non-conformist of the trade with right hand low in strict baseball fashion.

Mike Souchak goes for distance when he needs it, but his prime value lies in his ability near the green. He is deadly from 50 feet in. Twice Thursday he missed chips by less than two inches.

Temperament most of them show, and show it well. They show it on the course and they show it in the locker room.

Technically, the gold trailers play for the "fade" on the practice fairway; and on the course too. But see them trying to make a few extra yards and the old "hook" sneaks back into the swing.

He's a young fellow of 25, married, nine months out of the air force and a professional all of three years. His only big previous victory came in the Fort Wayne Open. He was runner-up in the Colonial, made $380 at Portland and less than $200 in the U.S. Open.

His game: "I'm satisfied," he says. "But if you'll excuse me, I think I'll practice for a while."

LOUISE BROUGH, TRABERT CHAM PIONS

Yanks Take Singles Titles

By ROBERT C. DOWSON
United Press Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (UP)—Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., called on all her tennis experience to beat Beverly Baker Fleitz of Long Beach, Calif., 7-5, 8-6, today and win the Wimbledon Women's championships for the fourth time.

Mrs. Fleitz, a pretty 25-year-old housewife, staged two gallant rallies in the dramatic second set of the match which required more than an hour and one-half. First she turned a 2-4 deficit into a 5-4 lead, and then she staved off defeat in the 12th game by breaking Miss Brough's service to tie the score at 6-6.

Mrs. Fleitz tried everything at her command in an effort to throw Miss Brough off stride. But with advantage on her own service in the 13th game, Mrs. Feitz netted twice and then was beaten when Miss Brough scored with a beautiful backhand volley at the net.

In the final game, Mrs. Fleitz netted twice and then hit out to fall behind 15-40. Miss Brough double-faulted at match point, but Mrs. Fleitz hit into the net on a forehand return and the match was over. The girls then rushed to the net to embrace.

The United States won both singles title as freckle-face Tony Trabert of Cincinnati won the men's crown by whipping Denmark's Kurt Nielsen, 6-3, 7-5, 6-1.

It marked the seventh time in the last 10 years that a U.S. player captured the men's diadem at Wimbledon.

The U.S. also was expected to win the mixed doubles today when Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., the defending champions, squared off against Miss Brough and Enrique Morea of Argentina.

In an all-Australian men's doubles title match, Lew Hoad and Rex Hartwig played Ken Rosewall and Neale Fraser. The finals of the women's doubles was an all-British affair, pitting Pat Ward and Shirley Bloomer against Angela Mortimer and Ann Shilcock.

Trabert achieved a "lifetime ambition" in winning the men's crown. And he did with a complete change in tactics, switching from his customary power hitting to a crafty game of soft lobs that left Nielsen completely befuddled.

The 24-year-old Ohio youth needed only 73 minutes to dispose of Nielsen in straight sets. He swept through the gruelling, two-week tournament without losing a set, thus equalling Don Budge's feat in the 1938 championships.

Following his scintillating victory, Trabert admitted he would consider a professional offer "if it was good enough," but added his next goal is to regain the U.S. title.

Moore Meets Marciano In Stadium Title Bout

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Marciano will defend his world heavyweight title against Archie Moore, the 38-year-old light-heavy king, in a 15-round match, Tuesday, Sept. 20 at New York's Yankee Stadium.

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, predicted the bout would draw a gate of $750,000 with an additional $250,000 from theatre network television. There will be no home television but negotiations are under way for a radio broadcast.

Announcing the match at a press conference Friday. Norris said Marciano will get 40 per cent of the gate and Moore 20 per cent. If Moore wins there is an agreement for a rematch within 90 or 120 days probably February with a 30-30 gate split.

Norris said tickets will be scaled from $40 to $10 with a limited number of general admission seats going on sale fight night at $5. In the event of rain the fight would be Sept. 21 or Sept. 22.

MILLION-DOLLAR GATE

Although New York Yankees may be playing in the world series at the Stadium starting Sept. 28, Norris said arrangements had been made to use the field as a "personal favor" by Dan Topping, Yankees president.

Al Weill, Marciano's manager, and Charlie Johnston, Moore's manager, both talked about a "million-dollar gate or better." However, there has not been a million-dollar gate since the Joe Louis-Billy Conn rematch, June 19, 1946, which drew $1,925,564 at $100 tops, second-highest receipts of all time. Only the Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney second fight at Chicago in 1927 was higher with its $2,658,660 gross.

Judging from the fans' reaction since Moore knocked out middleweight champion Bobo Olson last week at the Polo Grounds, this match packs more appeal than any of Marciano's five previous defences. The biggest gate the Rock has drawn was the $543,092 for his first match with Ezzard Charles in June, 1954.

MARCIANO FAVORITE

Unbeaten in 48 pro fights with 42 knockouts, Marciano already has been made a 13-to-5 favorite. Marciano won the title as a 2-to-1 favorite by knocking out Jersey Joe Walcott at Philadelphia in 1952. Victories over Nino Valdes and Olson, and a smart publicity campaign have made Moore a popular figure.

FERGIE SHAMROCK AGAIN; PILSENERS HERE MONDAY

Arnie Ferguson, veteran star and former coach of Victoria Shamrocks in the Intercity Lacrosse League, will return to the Shamrock line-up within a week.

Ferguson signed with the team this week and will take part in his first practice Sunday morning at 10.15 at Memorial Arena.

Ferguson's return is expected to take some of the sting out of Jack Bionda's leaving the team, the high-scoring forward being forced to return to his Ontario home Thursday because of his wife's illness.

City Thumps Students To Take Third Place

Victoria City moved into third-place in the Senior A Men's Softball League Friday night at Central Park when they broke a deadlock they held with Chinese Students by whipping the Students 8-5.

City, who won their seventh game of the season, are still 10 points off the lead as Cec Fletchers are back on top again after thumping the cellar-dwelling United Services 19-2 on Thursday night.

ROSS WINS FIFTH

Pitcher-coach Bud Ross won his fifth game of the season Friday, but the under-manned Students made it interesting. City scored three times in the first inning on three singles, but Students got one back in the last of the third when Doug Anderson singled, stole second, and came the rest of the way on two errors.

City drove starter Jimmy John from the mound in the sixth when they went ahead 7-1, scoring four runs on only two hits, but Students bounced back with three runs of their own and had the tying runs on base before being stopped.

In the top of the ninth City matched a single run that Students scored in the last of the eighth when catcher Jack Allan tripled to right to drive in Don Paulin.

On Thursday night Fiori Gogan of Cec Fletchers was the whole show as he picked up five extra base knocks — two home runs, two doubles and a triple—to drive in six runs, and he seored four himself to account for over half of the 19-run total run up by Fletchers. In addition Goegan took a turn on the mound in the last of the seventh and acquitted himself well.

Sunday afternoon the league top spot is at stake again. Arrow Furniture, at present resting in second place, tackle Cec Fletchers at 1.30. Winner of this game will journey to Vancouver next week-end to open the inter-city schedule of games that are on tap for this month.

Sunday night at 6.30 Arows pick up a rained-out game with Victoria City, and on Monday night the league hopes to pick up another rained-out game when Students play United Services.

Tribe's Burly Early Just Keeps on Rolling

Indians Blank Sox; Yanks Win

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

By almost every yardstick, burly Early Wynn measured up today as the best pitcher in the American League—perhaps in baseball.

The Cleveland right hander chalked up his fifth shutout—tops in the majors—and his third in a row Friday night, blanking the second place White Sox, 1-0, on six hits as Larry Doby hit a fifth-inning homer for the winning margin.

There were these things also to consider about Wynn. He now has an 11-2 mark, best in the American League and surpassed only by Don Newcombe's 13-1 figure for Brooklyn in the National. He beats the good clubs. In his string of shutouts prior to last night he scored his third one of the season last Sunday with a four-hit job against New York.

That marked the third time Wynn had beaten the Yankees, more than any other pitcher. The only club which has beaten him is Boston with two triumphs. He has beaten every club now including Baltimore and Kansas City twice and Boston, Washington, Chicago and Detroit once.

The victory over Kansas City was achieved in a duel with lefty Billy Pierce, who suffered his fifth defeat. It was the sixth straight loss for the White Sox, who now are only half a game ahead of the third place Indians.

YANKS PULL AWAY

The Yankees took a 6½ game first place lead with a 7-2 triumph over Washington in which Whitey Ford won his 10th game and Bill Skowron set the hitting pace with four runs batted in on a double and two singles. Andy Carey blew the game wide open with a two-run homer in a four-tally rally in the fourth.

Kansas City came home to big welcome and rewarded the fans with a 3-2, 7-5 sweep over the Tigers.

The Red Sox sent the Orioles down to their 10th straight defeat in 13 innings, 4-3, when Norm Zauchin hit his 16th homer of the season.

In the National League, Vern Law pitched and batted Pittsburgh to a 3-2 victory over Brooklyn, driving in a run with a single and holding them to seven hits. The Cubs cut Brooklyn's lead to 12½ games with a home-run slamming victory over the Cardinals that included a grand slammer by Gene Baker and other route clouts by Hank Sauer, Randy Jackson and Ernie Banks. Cincinnati also let go with a home run barrage in a 14-2 triumph over Milwaukee that strengthened its hold on fourth place over the New York Giants, who blew a 9-3 decision to the Phillies.

Ted Kluszewski hit his 24th homer for Cincy to tie Duke Snider of Brooklyn for the major league lead and Smokey Burgess, Gus Bell and Wally Post also homered. Joe Adcock hit one for the losers.

Dunn, Woods Fight to Draw

VANCOUVER (CP)—Georgie Dunn of Edmonton, a 132-pound persistent puncher, narrowly missed winning back the Pacific northwest lightweight championship here Friday night when he fought to a 10-round draw with popular Bobby Woods of Spokane, Wash.

Woods, who barely made the 135-pound weight limit, won the title from Dunn in a Spokane fight a year ago.

The decision was roundly booed by the crowd, and calls of "low blows by Woods" almost drowned out the public address system announcement.

Only one judge, veteran Billy Oates, scored the fight in Dunn's favor. He marked 49 points for Dunn and 44 for Woods. The other judge and the referee carded 47-47.

They plan to travel in easy stages, with overnight stops at Carmanah, Clo-oose, and Pachena. The total distance to be covered is 60 miles. The mikers are carrying food and bedrolls, but no tents.

Equalization of Assessment

THE REVIEW, SIDNEY

Full affect of the provincial government's new policy of applying equalization of assessment to different properties throughout this district is now known to the owners of land and buildings. No one opposes the principle of assessment equalization because it tends to spread the growing tax burden fairly throughout unorganized territories and municipal areas.

It may be fair to say that application of the government's assessment formula has resulted in some of the burden of taxation being partially lifted on highly improved residential properties and increased sharply on unimproved acreages, including agricultural lands. If closer examination reveals that this is a correct view, the government must devise some system of relieving the farmers from this additional burden. The path of agriculture on the peninsula and on the Islands is already a rocky one. It should be smoothed, not worsened.

Bamberton Forging Ahead

THE COWICHAN LEADER

This district stands to benefit greatly from the announced expansion by B.C. Cement Co. at Bamberton of its plant by a further 50 per cent of capacity.

Expenditure of $4,000,000, added to the estimated $5,000,000 spent since the war in doubling production, should provide work for many in this area. Some expansion of the company's community and housing interests may also be expected, though there has been no official announcement as yet of anything in this direction.

Majority of the 200 employees live in the district. The rest come from Victoria and Saanich daily, by car and boat. The large increase in production now planned will be felt throughout this area. Loss of the Solarium at Mill Bay, in favor of Gordon Head, near Victoria, may thus be compensated for by developments arising out of this latest Bamberton growth.

Help Build Those Blood Banks

PARKSVILLE-QUALICUM BEACH PROGRESS

Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic to be held in Parksville Community Hall July 12 is arranged to fill a definite need.

These clinics are as vital as blood itself is to the human body, and it is to provide blood for our hospitals that they are held periodically throughout the province.

Fortunate individuals may live a lifetime without requiring a blood transfusion, yet those same people may be sticken by accident or illness which may call for a blood transfusion at any time.

To meet this need by creating "blood banks" in hospitals throughout British Columbia, the Red Cross makes its annual appeal. Its officials, in close contact with medical men and hospital authorities, know that there must always be a surplus in the blood banks, for the simple reason that when blood is needed by hospital patients or accident victims it is required immediately—not tomorrow or the day after.

8,000 Attend Cowichan Fete

DUNCAN—Well over 8,000 people from all parts of Vancouver Island came to Duncan Friday for the 12th annual Duncan Dominion Day celebration.

Cars, buses and crowds flocked into Duncan as early as 8 a.m. for the celebration which, according to many residents, was bigger and better than in any previous year.

The celebration committee just failed to collect rain insurance by about one hour, for a heavy downpour started at 6 p.m. Weather during the morning and afternoon was perfect and suitable for the occasion. However, outside of Duncan intermittent rain fell all day.

First item on the day's program was a monster parade which instead of being the expected three-quarters of a mile long, extended to nearly two miles.

Bands, drill teams, clowns, naval cadets, RCMP, novelty floats and cars made a colorful opening to the day's events. Crowds at most places along the parade route were five deep.

Winner of the service clubs and organizations section was the Duncan Chamber of Commerce. Second prize was taken by the Moose Lodge, with the Duncan Musical Club third.

CHINESE WINNERS

The Chinese community won the section for all-Canadian floats, Michael Stone was best comic entry, and the Floral Art Shop entered the best decorated car.

World champion tree climber Danny Sailor, now of Ketchikan, Alaska, eclipsed his last Duncan July 1 record by two seconds in climbing the 90-foot spar tree.

SAILOR TOP CLIMBER

Undoubtedly the most popular event of the loggers sports, the tree climbing trial drew six more entries to try to beat Sailor. He went up and down the tree in 32.2-5 seconds—last year it was 34 seconds flat. He practically ran up the length of the long, straight stick, touched the bell, and came down as fast as an elevator.

Next fastest time was established by M. D. Harper of Cheshire, Ore., in 35.1-5 seconds. Third place was taken by Harold Johnson of Martin, Wash., iin 36.4-5 seconds. Credt was given 15-year-old Ron Pappenburger of Salt Spring Island, for his gallant try in 1 minute, 57.3-5 seconds.

MANY WINNERS

Nanaimo RCMP Warn Speeders

NANAIMO (CP) — RCMP have announced that traffic "ghost patrols" will be making a concerted effort to prevent any serious accidents in Nanaimo this week-end.

A spokesman said all patrols would be stopped up and motorists would do well to exercise more than their normal amount of caution.

"It will be no good driving with one eye on the mirror this week-end," the spokesman said. "The car clocking you might be of any make or description. It won't be any good looking for the familiar siren and red light because the car behind you might well be exactly the same as your neighbors."

The spokesman said five summonses were issued this week against motorists who failed to observe detour signs at the Cedar and Cassidy road cut-offs.

Colors Presented To Saltair Troop

The presentation was made by Mrs. F. R. Sadd, chapter regent, and the flag was dedicated by Rev. A. G. Howes, Chemainus. Mrs. H. L. Cook was standard bearer, and Mrs. G. W. Gustaphson and Mrs. J. Thornett formed the guard of honor.

Mrs. K. G. Boyd, guide captain told parents attending the ceremony that of the 14 girls in the troop, 11 will attend summer camp.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Create Isolated Garden Areas For Growing Difficult Plants

No gardener is long satisfied with growing just those plants suited to his soil, and the urge to grow subjects said to be difficult is hard to overcome.

Jack

We create pockets of suitable conditions. We try to find a corner having the climate they prefer, and then we provide the drainage, acidity and soil texture they require.

Sometimes this proves successful, but more often it proves to be a makeshift in which the plants fail to thrive.

Our failures seem to be caused by the influence of the surrounding general conditions. It is almost impossible to drain one corner, or acidify a few square feet, without draining or acidifying the entire garden.

As a more logical approach I would suggest the creation of small gardens which can be maintained independent from the whole and yet be an attractive part of the general scheme.

Total isolation for these special conditions could be provided by using tubs, troughs, urns, old metal sinks or bath tubs. In these we could maintain the conditions required by the plants and neither affect, nor be affected by, the immediate surroundings.

Consider for a moment those tiny gems of the rock garden; they require drainage, special soil mixture, and shelter from winter rains.

Planted in the open garden their beauty is lost and they are a worry and a trouble. But in a miniature rock setting built into a sink they would show to their best and, being raised above the surrounding level, be seen and appreciated, while a glass roof would provide just the protection they need in winter.

Or perhaps you would like to grow some bog plants, and a water lily in a small pool. An old style bath tub sunk into the ground will take care of the pool and the lily, while an artificial depression around it can be kept moist and acid to suit the bog subjects.

The calico bush or mountain laurel (Kalmia latifolia), once seen in flower can never be forgotten. It is not widely grown because it requires an acid soil and will not thrive in the average garden. Yet any gardener can create the conditions it requires by planting it in a large tub.

There are dozens of intriguing plants we could add to our gardens by creating these gardens within a garden. Lime lovers and acid lovers will grow side by side, each in its own container. Water lovers and drought lovers would add their beauty.

A little imagination and ingenuity would transform these commonplace, discarded containers into attractive garden pieces. But more to the point is the untold satisfaction the gardener would derive from growing successfully the plants he had always wanted but had to forego because suitable conditions were lacking.

WEEK'S GARDEN WORK

Cut Back Faded Rose Stems

Remove faded roses from bushes, cut stems half way back to branch.

Take cuttings of desirable pansies and violas.

Old plants of Persian cyclamen in pots should now be shaken out, repotted in rich soil with coarse rubble added.

Cut back chives which are seeding.

The spring flowering viburnums, V. burkwoodi and V carlesii require little pruning, beyond the removal of dead or old wood.

Cape Breton Hooked Rugs Big Business

CHETICAMP, N.S. (CP)—Hooking rugs is big business for this Cape Breton town which exploits as tourist attractions the skills developed through the generations.

Mrs. Joseph Deveau, who ranks with the experts in the stay-at-home trade, says "the special fame" of Cheticamp rugs keeps many a housewife busy during leisure hours.

"Practically every woman in Cheticamp hooks rugs," she says. "Most of them carry it on largely in the winter but many do it the year 'round."

DELICATE SHADES

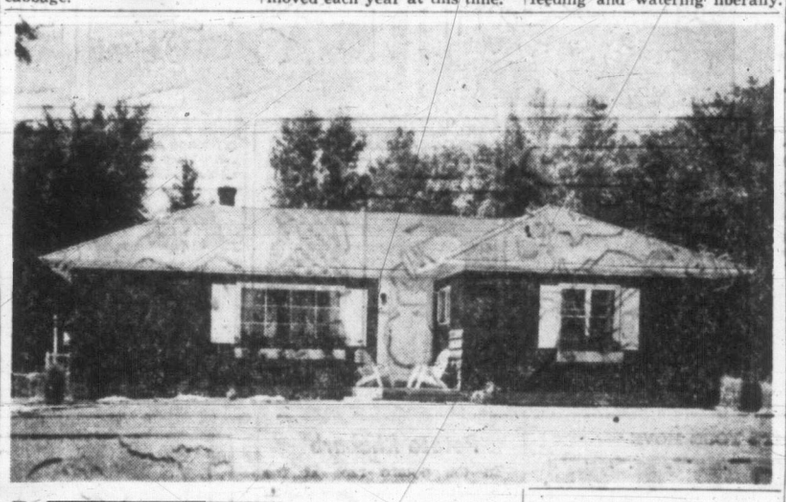
This year's rug harvest is mainly comprised of rugs of floral designs which "seem to hold the greatest appeal." The sudden swing away from homespun scenes, says Mrs. from homespun scenes, says Mrs. Deveau, "lends itself to the delicate, pastel shades."

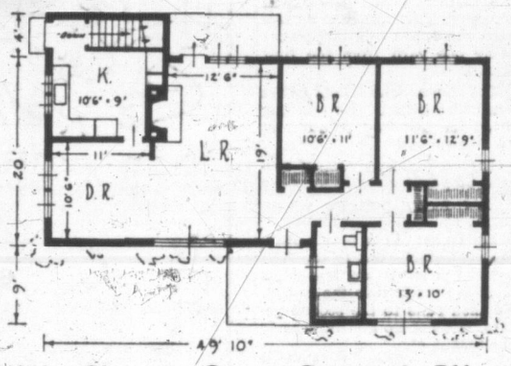
Although there are innumerable traditional designs which the rug-makers follow, innovations are often introduced when the design is drawn.

Cheticamp's biggest project was undertaken in 1938 when the townspeople joined in meeting a special order for a rug 36 feet long and 18 wide. The replica of a Persian carpet was completed in six-months by 10 women using 200 pounds of hand-spun wool dyed to 120 different color shades. This rug now is in Virginia.

Q: Is it too late to plant out sweet peppers?

A: With the present uncertain season I would suggest that you plant sweet peppers in a cold frame, or into the largest pots you have. In the latter case, keep the plants in a greenhouse, or a warm sunny porch, feeding and watering liberally.





White Shutters Create Dramatic Effect

Perhaps one of the most distinctive features of this six-room house is the deep, rich brown stain of the siding and its dramatic contrast with the white shutters, door and trim. It's a pleasing eye-arrester if there ever was one!

Inside we find an ideal room arrangement, with living room and dining room joined to give a feeling of spaciousness to each. The three bedrooms are well located in relation to the bathroom and the rest of the house, and each has good window openings and closets. Hall space has been reduced to an absolute minimum. L-shaped position of kitchen equipment with windows over the sink, make this room bright and efficient.

Modern Design In Furniture Stretches Walls

Space is where you find it. With furniture designs today it is almost impossible to believe that walls are not made of rubber.

Table leaves, for example, have been a problem as well as an asset since their inception. Today, they're promarily an asset, for they have a way of storing in secondary roles until needed to expand an eating surface. Moreover, design has reached a point where a "leaf" suddenly steps out to become a table in its own right, or a "leaf" is in actuality a continuous roll-out surface of fibre glass.

The interior design of current furniture offerings is so carefully worked that it, too, becomes a factor in expanding space. Desks drop down from cases; double beds magically appear from sofas.

Where floor space is limited, nests of tables and stacking chairs make excellent use of vertical space—going separate ways when needed.

STORAGE PROBLEM

While homes have changed and rooms have grown smaller, additional factors have intensified the storage problem. The very fact that a living room may be a bedroom, that a bedroom or living room may be a television area, accounts for the need of these rooms to house more than the usual paraphernalia of living. As a result, cases which fit pleasantly into the decor and offer the advantage of storage space have become an asset. Also valuable are drop-door wall units which can capitalize on wall space when floor space is at a premium and slim, tall cases which can make use of vertical space.

When end tables can house bedding and dressers can add extra drawers, when footboards open for pillows and blankets and carts are designed with slim glass-fitted sides—then life is easier and less cluttered.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q: Just since our attic floor was insulated brown streaks have formed on the house siding at attic level. What is the cause and what can be done to stop it?

A: Probably no vapor barrier was installed with the insulation. As a result, warm humid air within the house passes through the insulation and condenses on cold surfaces in the attic in winter. Seepage through the outside walls causes streaks. Since adding a vapor barrier on the outside of the insulation would probably not be practicable at this point, ventilating the attic by opening windows or operating an exhaust fan would be helpful.

Making Own Screens Assures Better Fit, Simplifies Summer Chore for Householder

Although some folks are all for buying window screens ready-made, there's one good argument for making your own screens—you can make them so that they can be fitted to the window frames with a minimum of cutting and planing.

Anyone who has ever hung a door, storm sash or screen can appreciate that it demands considerable skill. Or, in lieu of skill, patience and perseverance.

But a screen frame made to the exact measurements of a window should fit exactly, if the window opening is square. If it's not square, some planing may be in order, but not much.

Having obtained well-seasoned, knot-free screen stock from a lumber dealer, here's how you could proceed to make window and porch screens:

First, select the type of corner joint you wish the screen frames to have. Simplest is the common butt joint, in which the sides are merely butted against the ends of the top and bottom horizontal crossmembers. This joint, however, is not very strong and should be reinforced with steel angle irons, mending plates, or the like.

Stronger are the step joint (side pieces notched to receive top and bottom pieces), the dowel joint (butted or mitered) and the half-lapped joint.

MEASURE CAREFULLY

Now, to make a full-length screen frame, measure the window opening, mark your lumber and cut it carefully on the marks. Fasten the parts together at corners with glue and nails in the case of butt and step joints, ⅜-inch dowels and glue for the doweled joint, screws and glue for the half-lapped joint. Use waterproof resorcinol-resin glue.

If the screens are more than four feet tall, a middle horizontal crossmember should be added.

Half-length frames for double-hung windows are made the same, except that their side edges are grooved to permit them to slide up and down on runners nailed to the window frame just outside the lower sash. Place the screens as close as possible to window sash.

Runner channels on the frames can be formed either by gluing and nailing quarter-inch strips to the edges of the frames, or by cutting the grooves on a table saw.

You can now attach the screen cloth. There are several kinds—bronze, copper, aluminum, galvanized and plastic. Plastic has some advantage over the others in that it never needs a protective coating. Most others will rust or corrode in time.

TIGHTENING CLOTH

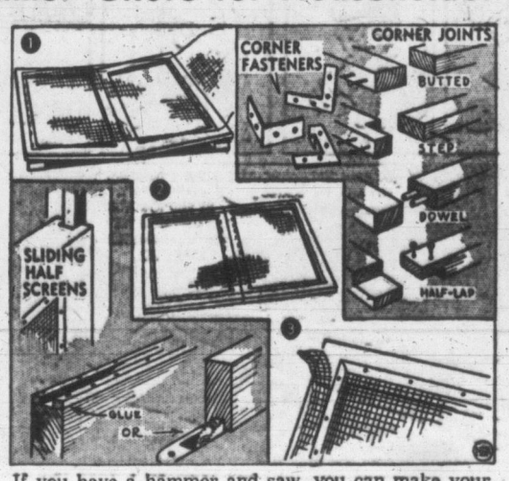
To attach screening in place, place two frames side by side and block up the opposite sides slightly. Lay a single length of screen cloth across both frames, stapling one frame, pulling it tight and stapling it to the raised side of the other frame. Remove blocks (this pulls screen taut) and staple screening around all sides of frames. Finally, cut through screen cloth between frames.

Avoid corrosive chemical action between metals by using galvanized staples only with steel and aluminum screening, copper staples with other screen cloths. Place staples half an inch from inside edges of frames. If screen is plastic, fold it and staple through double thickness on edges.

Final step is to cut, fit and nail flat screen mouldings over screen edges to cover staples. Trim of excess screening by drawing knife along outside edge of molding.

Before screening is attached is a good time to coat all wooden screen-frame components with a wood preservative. Some preservative solutions provide an excellent base for paint, and reduce the danger of moisture damage to paint films.

Screen frames should be painted before installation. But wire screen cloth should not need painting for a year.



If you have a hammer and saw, you can make your own window screens at a fraction of the cost of custom-fitted screens.

Q: We live in a basement apartment. Isn't there a way to paint a window screen so that a person cannot see in from above floors?—Mrs. W.

A. Not that I know of, although coating the screening with aluminum paint might help. Reflection of daylight from the silvery surface would block the view from outdoors to some extent. Installing fine mesh aluminum screening or aluminum-painted louver-type screening might be even better. Have you considered venetian blinds?

Be Comfortable Be Modern Too

Now it is possible to be comfortable—and be in style! Construction even makes the contour lounge an elegant idea for the living room, as slim slabs of foam rubber shape to a contoured body of expanded metal mesh.

Comfort is often an inside story, notes Retailing Daily. Even such hidden assets as pitch can't be ignored, especially when sofas increasingly double for sleeping and require different levels to be comfortable in both roles. The bed itself becomes a more significant matter for the comfort story as reading and television viewing increasingly move to the bedroom—making an asset of slanted cushions attached to the headboard.

Young Shoots of Delphinium Produce Flowers First Year

By JACK BEASTALL

Q: The flower spikes on my delphiniums get poorer each year. Do these plants deteriorate with age?

A: There is a definite deterioration unless the plants are propagated by cuttings after about the third year. The young shoots which appear through the soil in spring are removed and rooted in sand to produce individual plants. These may be set in the border in groups of six or more to give the effects of a large clump. Each will bear a single spike of good quality blooms the first year.

* * *

Q: I would like to refer to the culture of a plant called angel's fishing-rod but cannot find it listed under this name. Can you give me its botanical name?

A: While angel's fishing-rod is an accepted local name it is more often termed the wand-flower in gardening books, and its botanical name is dierama (dy-e-ray'-mah). It is a South African bulbous plant requiring a well-drained sandy soil preferably on the south side of a wall or fence. Plants should be lifted every third year and offsets removed.

Cryptogram

FDJJLO WITF LOR
BPLRW BORWR LOR
UWJJA MF KRRV.

The three-letter word that is repeated, is a starting clue. Another clue: A two-letter word that is the next-to-last word in the crypt often is a verb.

Solution: "Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep," which is often quoted. "Still waters run deep."

WITS TESTER

Potato Rhubarb

In the potato race at the church picnic each potato was separated from the next by one yard, the basket (starting place) being one yard from the first potato.

The runner who finished first was disqualified for having lifted the last two potatoes in his last journey.

The disqualified runner covered 92 yards altogether.

How many potatoes were there?

Remember, in a potato race, the contestant runs to the first potato, picks it up and runs back to deposit it in the basket. He then runs to the second potato, picks it up and returns to the basket, etc.

Answer: Each contestant was required to pick up 10 potatoes.

QUICK GUESS

A man selling chances on a punchboard is paid for 100 chances numbered from 1 to 100. The price of each punch is determined by its number. That is to say, Number 1 costs one cent, Number 2 costs two cents, etc.

How quickly can you estimate within $5 the total amount the man collects?

Remember, there are 100 chances on the board.

BEHIND THE EIGHT BILLS

Lem E. Gough considered eight his lucky number. Out of habit, he bought a $103 watch and paid for it with eight bills.

He did not use five twenties and three ones as might be expected, nor did he use any one-dollar bills. How was this possible?

Answer: Lem paid with a fifty, two tenties, a five and four twos.

Secret Message Try

The trick here is to turn this seeming jumble of words into two messages. These have been sent, supposedly, by a puzzlist and his wife to another couple having puzzlistic knowledge. By starting with a certain square and moving from square to square according to a certain method, which you are to discover, the two messages can be read. By you?

Dotograph Poser for Junior Readers

It appears to be raining cats and dogs in the drawing above but that's because something's missing from the picture. To complete the scene, draw a continuous line from dot one to dot 16. Where two numbers are beside one dot, use the dot for both.

Closing date for entries in Times Wildflower Coloring Contest: Saturday, July 16.

HOW NEWS GETS AROUND

Suppose that two people each repeat some gossip to two friends within 15 minutes from the time they heard it; that these four in turn each repeat it to two others within 15 minutes, etc. At the end of 90 minutes hoy many would know about it?

Answer: Two hundred and fifty-four persons.

Cryptarithmetic

  4 x x
  3 x
-------
  3 6 x x x x 7 x
  x x 3 x x
```

RIDDLES:

If a telephone and a piece of paper had a race, which would win?

The telephone, since the paper would always remain stationary.

MARILYN BELL'S DIARY

1066 and All That Intrigues Swimmer

FOLKESTONE—I've got a letter. It's one I've been waiting for. It was at the hotel when we arrived at Folkestone. But I put it away and I'm not going to read it until I'm in bed tonight. That's the best time, when you're propped up on pillows and everything is quiet. So I've put it away in my writing case until then.

Let me see. Where did I leave off last time. Oh, yes, I was telling about the trip down here and we had had lunch at the inn by the big chestnut tree. Well, everything got better and more interesting as we went along.

We drove on along the narrow paved road to a little village called Lenham. It had cobbled streets and right in the centre of the main street a very old-looking building. Mr. Bartlett of The Telegram said he thought it was Tudor. It was made of plaster, crossed with timbers of old wood. When we looked at it closely the wood had no nails in it but was put together with pegs. But the plaster was new, and guess what was inside it? Of all things, a drugstore. I should say, chemist's shop.

We went in to see what it was like and the lady there told us all about it. Her name is Mrs. J. A. Langridge and she surprised us all by explaining "I'm not a chemist. I'm a pharmacist. We're trying to get away from that old-fashioned word chemist because it doesn't mean exactly what we are."

BOTTLED WINDOWS

Inside the little store there was a red stone floor and a high roof that came up to a peak and the same plaster and timber as outside. There was one rough stone wall near the back with a ladder leaning against it and the door had funny glass in the top half. The little panes were cloudy and greenish with swirls in the middle like the bottom of a bottle.

"Look at this," the woman said, pointing at the door. We looked closely and scratched on one of the panes of glass in scrawly letters was the name J. Budd, Jan. 19, 1761. "I think this was probably a pub then and J. Budd had had one too many." Mrs. Langridge said, "but the place is much older than that." A pub is a beer parlor.

She said that the place must have been built about the time of William the Conqueror or King John, maybe 1200 or so, because of the architecture. She said she wouldn't have known about it at all, except three years ago she had come down from London looking for a place to start her own business and she had found this place. It had been a very bad shape. A bomb had knocked the roof off, but the inside was good. She couldn't do anything about it until she applied to the government for permission to make the repairs. They told her she could fix it up, but, according to the law, it had to be restored as it was originally in 1200. Imagine that. But I think it's a very good idea just the same.

EXPERT RESTORERES

Of course, Mrs. Langridge didn't like the idea at first, especially when, she said, "and the government wouldn't pay a bean towards the restoration." But they sent down workmen who knew all about that sort of thing. There is a carved post holding up the peak of the roof and the workmen told Mrs. Langridge that was how they knew the date when the house was built.

Away back in history, the house would have been called a Pope's Hall and it belonged to a certain class of wealthy farmer. The post was called a King post. In peasants' smaller cottages the roof post was called a Queen post.

When the men got digging they discovered the stone wall at the back that was older still and inside one of the walls, that was ready to fall down, they found the skeltons of two Saxon soldiers. They knew they were Saxons because they still had their spears. Mrs. Langridge said when the workmen picked up a spear and rubbed it against his jacket, it shone just as if it were new.

Don't I wish I had been there. It would have been really exciting. The spears are in Favisham museum now and I don't think we'll have time to go there to see them. Behind the counter where all the soaps and toothpastes and perfumes and things like that were kept there was a hollow in the floor where the workmen had taken out some charcoal. Scientists had analyzed it and they said it was 1,000 years old. They didn't have stoves and chimneys that far back. They just built the fire in the centre of the floor and let the smoke go out a hole in the roof.

QUIET ENGLISH

Of course Mrs. Langridge is very glad now she had the place restored, because it is so interesting and so many people come to see it, even though it isn't advertised. There isn't a sign on it anywhere to say what it is. The English are not like us that way. They are much quieter.

Of course, I bought another bunch of postcards. I have a pile now about six inches high. I'll never be able to send them all away, but when I get home I'm going to get a scrap book and paste them all in so that I can always remember my wonderful trip.

I think I'll stop here, because I'm getting tired of writing and I can tell the rest of the journey in the next instalment of my diary.

SPENDING COMPARISON 'UNFAIR'

City Parks Money Partly Revenue Says Saanich Man

Saanich councillor Leslie Passmore today charged a city alderman with making an "unfair" comparison between Victoria and Saanich park developments.

Ald. Donald Smith, speaking at a Royal Oak public meeting Thursday, said: "Saanich is not pulling its weight with regard to parks."

The meeting was arranged by Saanich Voters' Association to discuss Saanich parks in general.

Victoria spent $180,000 on parks for a population of 53,000, while Saanich spent only $10,440 for a population of 32,500, Ald. Smith said. Oak Bay spent $19,000 for 13,100 population, and Esquimalt $11,650 for 10,600.

But Clr. Passmore said Ald. Smith gave only one side of the picture and tried to "paint the city council as a fairy godfather."

"Hidden from Victoria taxpayers is the knowledge that the city collects a large revenue from some of its parks," he said. "So the city can make it look like it is spending lots of money on public recreation."

GETS REVENUE

Mr. Passmore said the city collected revenue from Royal Athletic Park and Macdonald Park. He understood the city is now also charging the public for playing ball at Central Park.

"If you take the revenue they receive from these parks and compare it with their expenditures on public parks, the amount the city spends is not as high as Ald. Smith would like the public to believe," the counsellor said.

(Mr. Smith claimed Victoria spends $3.34 per capita for improvement and maintenance of parks as compared with 32 cents spent by Saanich.)

While not denying that Saanich was lagging behind in its park development, Clr. Passmore said the city had less to boast about with regard to park development.

"In these years of expansion, city council has practically done nothing to develop or to dedicate land for parks," said Clr. Passmore. "Most of the present parks, if not all, were in existence many years ago."

He questioned why Thetis Lake had not been dedicated as a park and protested that the city was presently thinking of selling some of the land and timber on the property.

"The city council is only thinking of making money out of public property," he added. "If the city has shown any foresight for the future, I would like to know about it. If the city is really sincere about park development then let it dedicate suitable land now."

Ald. Smith in attacking the park policy of Saanich, told the meeting that Saanich parks were in poor condition.

"Your first trimming was done recently with a hay mower and your wading pools are not operating yet," he said.

Doug Fletcher, president of the Sports Council of Greater Victoria and a resident of Saanich agreed with Ald. Smith that the Saanich park's policy was in need of an "overhauling."

LONDON (Reuters) — The markets ended a week on a firm note Friday. Business remained moderate but sentiment was encouraged by a return of confidence in sterling following the government's denial of devaluation and the chancellor of the exchequer's firm confidence in the pound.

With the pound moving up again after its recent weakness, buyers returned to the British government securities market and prices advanced.

After a late overnight rally, industrials moved steadily ahead with gains of one to two shillings particularly in those connected with atomic developments. Motors advanced despite holdup in exports through the dock strike.

Gold shares after opening higher sagged on lack of support. Coppers were quietly maintained and oils were firmer.

WEEK-END REVIEW

Steel Settlement in U.S. Spurs New York to New Record Height

Stock market prices, encouraged by settlement of the steel wage dispute in the United States, spurted ahead in New York Friday.

Meantime Canadian exchanges were closed for Dominion Day and their closing action Thursday reflected a week of mixed ups and downs.

Even in their four-day trade Toronto and Montreal developed less enthusiasm than New York where, on Thursday, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks equalled its record of the previous week and, on Friday's news, went up 80 cents to a new high.

In this week's four-day action most Toronto and Montreal indices were down.

Papers were weakest and Montreal's paper index dropped 26.95 to 1416.40.

Primary steel producers were down on the week but reacted favorably Thursday to New York's hopefulness. Algoma took a six-point loss on small turnovers on Tuesday and Wednesday, but it quickly picked up again and finished the week down only two points.

Brazilian Tracton, encouraged by foreign exchange concessions in Brazil, steadied for a ⅝ gain to $8. George Weston Ltd. advanced an impressive 6½ points to $94.50 amid rumors that something was afoot in the food industry. Dominion Magnesium gained 2½ points. Financial institutions were strong.

A number of mining issues gave spectacular volume displays in Toronto but without much result pricewise.

PARDEE SOARS

Pardee Amalgamated was an exception. On favorable drilling reports from Saskatchewan's Beaverlodge area it went up $1.52 to $2.95.

Among higher-priced uraniums, Consolidated Denison was down 1½ points on the week and Algom, Pronto and Gunnar were off fractionally.

Base metals closed out the short week on the downgrade. Sherritt Gordon, however, posted a four-day gain of 20 cents to $7.70; Consolidated Ranwick 44 cents to $2.50.

Golds made a fair showing. McIntyre, subject of rumors concerning future control of the company, advanced 3¾ to $87. Consolidated Discovery Yellowknife gained 90 cents to $4.90.

OILS FIRM

Oils were firmest in relatively quiet trading. Substantial advances on the week included Canadian Pipe Line Producers 53 cents to $2.70; Federated Pete 45 cents to $5.75; Dome Exploration Western 30 cents to $5.45; Jasper 27 cents to $1.85; Calvan 25 cents to $5.80.

Toronto indices, based on representative stocks, showed industrials down 3.35 at 410.92; golds down .05 at 86.64; base metals down 2.22 at 193.06; western oils up .86 at 113.29.

Montreal indices showed banks up 1.01 at 48.76; utilities off 0.9 at 134.5; industrials off 4.6 at 284.9; combined off 3.3 at 234.8; papers off 26.95 at 1416.40; golds off 2.34 at 81.81.

Actress Drops Dead During 'The Shrike'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Veteran Broadway actress Isabel Bonner died Friday night in the midst of a scene on the stage of the Carthay Circle Theatre.

The curtain was rung down immediately. The audience at the theatre where she was playing the female lead in "The Shrike" didn't know what had happened until stage manager Henry Staudigl told them she was dead.

Miss Bonner was 47. Staudigl said he believed a heart attack caused her death. A post-mortem examination to determine the cause will be made today, the coroner's office said.

She was playing a hospital scene with male lead Dane Clark in the first act when she suddenly fell forward on the bed where Clark was supposed t be a patient.

Clark leaned forward and put his arm around her. "Ann, speak to me," he interpolated into the dialogue. "Is something the matter? What's wrong, darling? I love you."

Then he realized something was wrong. He turned to the wings and said:

ONLY TWO SHOWS LEFT

Many in the theatre thought it was part of the play. Then Staudigl appeared and told the audience its money would be refunded. "The Shrike" has only two more performances to play in its Los Angeles run. Understudy Edith Reis Merin will play Miss Bonner's role in two shows today.

Miss Bonner was a veteran of many top Broadway plays, appeared in New York television dramas and was an actress in the radio serials "Nora Drake" and "The Right to Happiness."

Later she studied in New York under Alex Koiransky and the late Maria Ouspenskaya. Her Broadway debut was as the ingenue in "Let Freedom Ring."

Big Bert Crosses Discovery Passage In 58 Minutes; Woman 'Partner' Pinched

The big Tacoma logger, with four unsuccessful tries at Juan de Fuca Strait, made the swim in 58 minutes 50 seconds, landing at Campbell River post office before thousands of onlookers.

Big Bert dashed between two tide rips in the centre of the passage, and churned through the boiling waters to shore at a rate unmatched in his attempts to swim Juan de Fuca.

Two persons who tried to get into the swim with Thomas were arrested by RCMP. A woman, whose name was withheld by police, ran from the crowd, shed her dress, and plunged in.

Bert said the woman's action followed a joking invitation to the crowd to join him in the swim. "She just ripped off her clothes and jumped in," he said this morning. "It was the funniest thing I've ever seen."

Two RMCP constables dragged the protesting woman to shore.

$1 Million Training Unit To Be Built at Esquimalt

Lang Cove Site Selected For RCN Establishment

A $1,000,000 combined technical training establishment will be built at Esquimalt for the Royal Canadian Navy, it was learned today.

Architects McCarter, Nairne and partners of Vancouver have been engaged to prepare detailed drawings and specifications for the new structure.

It will be located on Lang Cove, behind Moresby House and adjacent to Yarrows Ltd., directly across the water from HMCS Naden.

Plans will be submitted to naval headquarters in Ottawa for approval prior to calling for tenders for actual construction.

UNDER ONE ROOF

Purpose of the new single-story building, to measure 650 by 350 feet, will be to house under one roof, on a permanent basis, three training units now located in temporary buildings at Naden.

They are the mechanical training establishment, that trains engineering artificers, engineering mechanics and shipwrights; the electrical training centre and ordnance training centre.

In addition to releasing space at Naden for other training requirements, the new building will provide up-to-date facilities to meet special requirements of the different branches.

Duplication will be avoided by making facilities common where possible, thus effecting economies both in finances and training staff.

Legionnaire Bob Knight Named 'Good Citizen'

BY DINAH KERR

Leader in veterans' affairs for more than 30 years, Legionnaire Robert Knight was named Victoria's Good Citizen for 1955 at "I am a Canadian" Day service Friday night on the Legislative Building grounds.

Mr. Knight has been active in the Canadian Legion since the First World War and was president of the Victoria and district zone council for 10 years.

Mr. Knight received the Canadian Legion meritorious service badge in 1946 for long and honorable service.

VICTORIA PROUD

Presenting the Good Citizen award on behalf of the B.C. Native Sons, Judge J. B. Clearihue said "his actions have re-echoed over the whole of Canada. Victoria is proud of Bob Knight."

More than 2,000 Victorians turned out for the Dominion Day program, and solemnly repeated the Canadian citizen's pledge of loyalty.

GUNS LOADED

"We cannot be quick on the draw when the atomic guns of the world are loaded," he said. "The older pioneering qualities are not enough to see us through these emergencies."

'THE AXE' FOR TAX

Road, Poll Taxes May Be Discarded

By TOM GOULD

Both taxes are considered "antiquated" by many government and municipal officials, and at least one of them, the road tax, is definitely expected to go into discard.

GIVEN CHOICE

They were given the choice of levying poll tax, through by-law, or leaving it alone.

Nineteen out of 36 cities, 20 out of 29 district municipalities, and 11 out of 49 villages are taking advantage of the poll tax. In 1953 the tax raised a total $131,069.

The head tax is one of the few pieces of legislation still on the lawbooks which discriminates against the male. Females, although they enjoy the franchise, are protected by law to ensure they receive "equal pay for equal work," and pay exactly the same income tax and property tax, don't have to pay poll tax.

The reason is that the poll tax was introduced in the days when most women never worked for a living. Times have changed, but not the poll tax.

HARD TO COLLECT

It is one of the hardest and most expensive taxes to collect, according to government experts, and no one can estimate how many escape it for there is no way of checking how many non-property owning "males, above the age of 21 years" there are in a municipality, particularly one the size of Victoria.

The age factor appears to be another way in which this tax discriminates. No one will deny that thousands of young men, 18, 19 and 20, work, earning better, in many cases, wages than men twice their age. These men also have the vote in provincial elections, but they don't pay the poll tax.

Chambers' Road Objection Premature, Official Says

The associated chambers Wednesday, at their Duncan convention protested the 18-foot width called for in the province's agreement with logging firms, who will build the roads as a provision of forest management licenses.

Delegates to the C of C convention said the roads should be 24 feet wide, so public vehicular traffic would not be endangered by overweight, overwidth logging trucks.

"This is getting a bit silly. Why the other day someone was complaining about the dust the roads would raise," said one official. "They wanted to know when the government was going to pave them. They are not even built yet," he said.

The government spokesman said widths of the roads is a detail now being worked out between the highways department and the companies involved.

He said the widths of bunks on logging trucks using the access roads may be cut down if necessary.

SANDOWN ENTRIES NOT AVAILABLE AT. PRESS TIME.

Cleric's Wife Family Must Come Second

The attractive author of "Least of All Saints" and "Andrew Connington" addressed a meeting of ministers' wives during the convention of the Church of the New Jerusalem.

Miss Irwin, a teacher at Humberside Collegiate Institute, Toronto, speaking as a laywoman said a minister's wife must be the most adaptable person in the world. She must be ready to change her role according to the size of her husband's church and congregation.

"A minister's wife's first function is to complement her husband," she said. "Often a charming, capable woman can make an otherwise dull, stodgy wearer-of-the-collar achieve much in his parish."

It is nice to be attractive—but not too attractive, she said. "It is suspected that some Christians may resent an attractive minister's wife."

DISCRETION COUNTS

The wife may also have a special talent for organization but she must repress it for the sake of the women in the congregation who may be jealous, Miss Irwin said.

A minister is a specially-called person she said, and his wife and family can never come first. "He is God's man, under God's authority, not the wife's.

"A sympathetic ear and verbal discretion—hard for any woman, is far more blessed than more showy talents," she said.

Miss Irwin said pastors' wives must accept the fact that a minister's home is not private in the accepted sense. Just as the Queen's family is expected to be gracious—so it is with the church pastor's family.

Since there is so little privacy it is important that a minister have a little cell of peace in his home, she advised. He can put up with almost anything if he has love, peace and loyalty at home.

City Witnesses At Big Parley In Vancouver

Final Good-Evil Battle 'Imminent'

Victoria's Jehovah Witnessec, several hundred strong, today are attending the five-day convention in Vancouver's Empire Stadium, one of 11 being held throughout the world this year.

Mr. Knorr told delegates from 38 states of the U.S. and from seven Canadian provinces the battle of Armageddon would see people who had not been "saved" squashed "flatter than a pancake by the great rock of Jehovah."

FINAL BATTLE NEAR

Quoting chapter and verse from the Bible, he pointed out conditions outlined there which must be fulfilled before God could return to earth. These conditions have almost been complied with, he said.

God, he said, would wipe out all men who have not accepted His teachings.

Mr. Knorr said "those who enjoy the friendship of Jehovah's enemies try to silence our message which is so foul-smelling to them. We stink to these world-lovers."

Red China Recognition Urged Here

The time has come for the UN to recognize Red China, J. H. Ford, newly elected president of the UN Association in Victoria said Thursday.

A veteran of 23 years in China and Malaya, who came to Victoria a year ago, he said the Chinese attitude had changed in the last 12 months. Communists realize, he went on, that Asia "can't stand a new Chinese imperialism."

He predicted the pending Big Four conference would likely make a move towards recognizing Red China in the UN.

Mr. Ford was with an oil company in China for 20 years, before a three-year stint in Malaya helping that government re-settle more than 1,000,000 Chinese during guerilla warfare there.

The annual meeting also named Dr. Peter Mar, Dr. W. A. McElmoyle and Mrs. Renee Archibald as vice-presidents, G. H. Thornton as honorary treasurer and Edgar Stansfield, treasurer.

Fine Male Chorus To Be Heard Here

Princeton Theological Seminary Choir In Service of Song Tuesday Evening

One of the continent's outstanding male choruses in the field of sacred music will be heard in a service of song here when the Princeton Theological Seminary Choir sings at First United Church at 8.15 p.m. Tuesday, July 5.

The 18 members of this male chorus are all college graduates who are now preparing for full-time Christian service.

The entire service is conducted by members of the choir. The musical portion which constitutes an integral part of the worship service is sung entirely from memory and for the most part without accompaniment. The repertoire represents the finest choral music, including the works of Palestrina, Lotti, Bach, Handel, Haydn and Mendelssohn, as well as contemporary European and American composers, and several Negro spirituals.

LED BY COMPOSER

Dr. David Hugh Jones has been director of music at Princeton Seminary since 1934. He is a character member of the faculty of the Westminster Choir College and a composer of sacred music which is sung by leading choral organizations. He is also editor of the new hymnal, The Hymnbook, which will be published in October by five Presbyterian and Reformed denominations in the United States.

During the winter the choir presents its service in some 80 churches, singing in at least three churches within a day's journey of Princeton each Sunday of the academic year. In recent years it has made extensive summer tours on which it has sung in every state in the Union, Alaska, Hawaii, Cuba, Mexico, and Canada. In the summer of 1953, upon invitation from the Far East Command, the singers toured Japan and Korea, and the Hawaiian Islands, singing for military personnel and for many national churches and schools.

New Mint Sauce Ladle Aids In Serving at Meal Times

By PENNY SAVER

Planning a sumptious leg of lamb roast for this Sunday's dinner? Most people serve lamb with a home-made mint sauce. Do you? If so, you'll be pleased to know that there's a handy mint sauce ladle on sale in town. The bowl of the ladle, has six tiny holes in the bowl part of the spoon, through which the excess liquid and vinegar is drained off until the sauce is to the consistancy to suit the server. Isn't it wonderful! It won't tarnish, 'cause it's stainless chromium plate, and it costs just 69 cents.

If you're interested in buying a dress for summer, one that could be used for a summer wedding, a tea, or for a dinner-date, I've found a dress, in fact, a charming ensemble, that will suit you to a T. The dress is jumper style, with a square neckline, and tiny buttons extending to the Empire waistline. The material is cotton, and over it is a layer of pink nylon net, fitted, and stitched in a quilted-effect to give the impression of one layer of material. A tiny black bow at the neckline cascades its ribbons to the waistline, where sheath skirt is very flattering.

Over top of this dream of a dress is a nylon shantung duster in shell pink. It is collarless, and has three-quarter length cuffed sleeves. You'll be pleased as punch with the price, too, just $29.95.

* * *

Incidentally, I know where you can buy fall dresses, good basic dresses that may be dressed up or worn plain, selling at half price. Some of them are in half-sizes, and all are very chic. Now's a good time to stock up, in the fall they'll be much more expensive.

Have you tried the powdered milk that's been introduced on the market lately? It's not the standard type that has been selling for so long, but a new instant milk. You simply put the powder into water, stir, and there it is. No beating or shaking, no adding of substitutes for color or taste. For 38 cents, you may buy a package of powdered skim milk that will make four quarts.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Lane with baby Grant, daughter Sherry and son Donnie are all ready for a picnic in the park, by the sea or in the mountains. All they need is sunshine and blue skies and they will be off and away.

Trimming Sissy Stuff for Men Say Women Barber Operators

VANCOUVER (CP) — In a small two-chair barber shop here the topic of conversation generally is the barbering staff of two women.

Mrs. Irene Novosel operates the shop with the assistance of Aida Renko. Both are Finnish and they came by the barbering trade naturally.

Most of them, says Mrs. Novosel, pace back and forth two or three times before entering, mostly out of curiosity. They usually come back again.

"I started a shop in 1930 when I came here," she said, "then I moved my shop and in 1932 went up to barber in Bridge River about 120 miles north of here."

She married and gave up barbering three years later, but returned to her trade last fall when her husband died.

After her training in the old country, Mrs. Novosel worked for six months in a beauty parlor—about six months too long to hear her tell it.

The indecision the men display before entering the shop disappears soon after they settle in the chair.

"They talk about newspaper headlines if there is any real news . . . and some tell me about their operations . . . but they seem to be more interested in me," she says.

"So we talk mostly about me."

The Danish "Middag" or dinner is eaten at 7 or 8 o'clock in the evening. Often the dessert is a fruit sauce served over white rice. Another dinner favorite in Scandinavian countries, is the cabbage roll. This roll is made by folding wilted cabbage leaves around a mixture of seasoned rice and meat and then baking these rolls in a sauce until tender.

Girl's Parents Cling To Customs of Past

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Customs change just as fashions in clothes and automobiles do. If a person wants to get along in life, he must keep up to date or he will be left behind.

Hurlock

(Q)—"I have just finished my junior year in high school and have a big problem I hope you can help me solve. It concerns my parents and their attitudes about what is 'correct.' I was the last girl in my class to be allowed to wear high heels, lipstick, and strapless evening dresses. My mother always said that in her youth 'nice' girls didn't do such things until they were 18 years old. Now my parents won't let me go steady with any boy, as all my classmates do. They claim that you shouldn't go steady until you are engaged and that people will misunderstand and think I am engaged if I go steady. I have tried to explain that times have changed but all I get from them is that the 'correct things' don't change. How can I make them see that they are living in the past?"

(A)—I doubt if you could make them see that they are hopelessly behind the times in their ideas of what is "correct" for a girl in 1955. This would have to come from an outsider, preferably from someone your parents greatly admired and respected.

Why not ask one of your teachers or your pastor to talk to your parents and explain to them what the "nice girls" of today are doing? This would give them an insight into the change that has occurred since they were your age.

Don't, however, expect even this to bring about an overnight change in your parents' attitudes. People don't change their minds about things very quickly when they have as definite ideas as your parents seem to have.

But, you do not want to ruin your senior year in high school by being kept from doing what your friends are permitted to do. That is why it is worth all the efforts you can give to bring about this change in your parents' attitudes.

Dr. Hurlock is the author of a 64-page booklet, "You and Your Problems." For your copy send 15 cents in coin with a stamped self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

In Step With Style

By NONA DAMASKE

"Picnic in the Park"—The whole family loves a picnic . . . so blow up a ball for the children to toss . . . tuck in a skipping rope . . . fill the picnic hamper . . . and I do mean fill it. Everyone will want to eat as soon as you find your picnic spot. There is something about eating outdoors that spurs on the most jaded appetites . . . the children all have hollow legs . . . Dad will eat hard boiled egg sandwiches which he always avoids at home. Mrs. Lane hasn't a worry in the world about the children's clothes as they are all washable and easy to iron. Baby Grant is a cute as a button in a white terry cloth sunsuit with red bias trim. The front of his little suit is all dome fastened so he can be changed without pulling and tugging anything over his head.

Nona

Blonde Sherry has a co-ordinated play set by Bonnie Brae. She is wearing the bolero sun top and elastisized waistband shorts. Sherry also has peddle pushers and a halter top all in crushaway cotton which requires no ironing.

Now that school is out Donnie wants to picnic every day and he is all set in California styled Boxer-top cotton drill shorts and a bright Glenisle combed cotton T-shirt.

Mother has a set of interchangeable play separates by Sacony of Montreal. These New York designed playtogs are feminine and pretty but also comfortable and practical. Olive is wearing a white broadcloth shirt with knitted Hello and white collar and armholes. Her smartly tailored Helio pedal pushers are stitched in black. To complete this summer fun wardrobe Olive has a boned bra top and matching Bermuda shorts.

The man of the family has shed his warm business suit and is cool and comfortable in California styled faded blue slacks and a fine lightweight basket weave cotton T-shirt in Navy blue with grey trim. Art has brought along his matching zipper front faded blue jacket with navy rib knit cuffs and collar.

Relax and have fun in gay easy to care for play clothes. There is an exceptionally good selection for the whole family in our shops now.

THE QUESTION BOX

Dear Miss Style-conscious: The overblouse and long torso look will definitely be shown in the fall lines. You are tall enough to wear this style very well but you must be sure to have very careful fitting as these beltless dresses and blouses must fit to perfection over the hipline.

Wedding Music Composed by Bride Played at Ceremony This Afternoon

To the strains of "Wedding Feast," her own composition, Miss Sheila Besley walked up the aisle of St. George the Martyr Church this afternoon on the arm of her brother, Denis Besley, to become the bride of Dr. Paul van der Wielen.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. M. H. P. Besley, 2766 Seaview Road, was lovely in her floor-length gown of white lace flounced with a frill of nylon tulle over slipper satin. The gown, fashioned in princess lines, was pearl trimmed, and had a matching lace bolero jacket with long lily point sleeves. Her fingertip veil of nylon tulle was held by a headpiece of iridescent sequins and embossed mother-of-pearl. Her fan-shaped bouquet was of gardenias and white stephanotis.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Zena Bernard, sister of the bride, was gowned in a floor-length turquoise nylon tulle dress with matching bolero and headdress trimmed with pink apple blossoms. Her bouquet was of pink carnations. Bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Baker and Miss Betty-Mae King, wore pastel pink floor-length gowns of nylon tulle with matching jackets. Their bouquets were colonial style, in blue tones.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. van der Weilden, 587 Brethour Street, Sidney, asked Dr. A. Dekker to be best man. Ushers were Mr. R. Rhodes and Mr. Wright.

A three-tier wedding cake decorated with pink roses and placed on a silver stand centred the bride's table at a reception in the Cherry Bank Hotel. Dr. Dekker proposed the toast.

For a honeymoon trip motoring through the States to Salt Lake City and then Pennsylvania, the bride chose a fitted pastel-gray boucle suit with pleated skirt. Her accessories were red and tan.

Dr. and Mrs. van der Weilen will make their home in North Warren, Penn.

Miss Gladys Moores Wed

St. Mark's Anglican Church was scene of a charming wedding Thursday evening, when Miss Gladys Moores, daughter of Mrs. M. E. Moores, 845 Leslie Drive, exchanged vows with Mr. Jack Rhodes, son of Mrs. E. Rhodes, 934 Mason Street, in a ceremony at which Canon George Willis officiated. Red and white carnations with blue iris were placed in the church.

Given in marriage by her uncle, W. J. White, of Coleman, Alta., the bride chose a two-piece afternoon dress of champagne brocaded satin, fashioned with bracelet length sleeves. Her accessories were pale blue, and her corsage was of red roses.

Miss Hazel Peck of Vancouver was maid of honor in an afternoon dress of grey-blue patterned with small pink and black flowers. She wore a pink rose corsage.

Best man was Kenneth McPhail.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Comer, 590 Whiteside Avenue, were hosts at the reception party which followed. A bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centred with a three-tier wedding cake. Roses and wedgwood-toned iris formed the floral setting.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes will make their home in Prince George.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Miss Marlene Koski was hostess at a surprise grocery shower for Miss Cathy Murray. The shower was held at the home of Mrs. W. Murray, 1526 Cook Street. Gifts were presented to the bride-elect in a decorated grocery hamper topped with a miniature Scottie doll and presented with a corsage of white carnations and red rosebuds. Guests were Mrs. W. Murray, Mrs. F. McLeod, Mrs. P. Barber, Mrs. V. McBeath, Mrs. C. Schmitz, Mrs. K. Griffiths, Mrs. B. Billsborough, Misses Lois Ogden, Isabelle Elliot, Marilyn McLeod and June Robbins.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The Key to Youth—Moderation, Interest

Here are a few of the things doctors have found out about those who live to a vital old age and are active and keen and youthful much longer than the average.

1. Many of them had serious trouble physically or had generally poor health at midlife, discovered the routine which was good for them and stuck to it.

2. They are normal or slightly underweight.

3. Many of them have their own business. They work harder than the man who works for someone else, but perhaps without the emotional pressures and in more sympathetic surroundings and with more enthusiasm.

4. They eat less of the rich foods and less in amount of all foods.

5. Their work or habit has made them active physically all through their lives. This highlights the value of exercise.

6. They are enthusiastic people but usually have a sense of humor and a calm spirit. They are not hectic as a rule.

Moderation in all pleasures seems to be the rule. I am sure that eagerness and interest in life also play a great and important role. Over and over again the people I know and those who write to me, who are extremely youthful for their age, are most interested in the world and in what is going on about them. They do not hold grudges or gripes and they enjoy young people.

Most of them have hobbies, some of which have been turned into commercial jobs, but they are doing what they enjoy doing as a rule.

We cannot all change our situation or slough off our responsibilities to meet these requirements but we can learn a lot from them. They can be useful in changing our point of view and in helping us get the most out of life and in making it as long and vital as possible.

Steal Attention

LONDON (CP) — Actress Freda Jackson says the stage is no place for anyone under 11. "It's impossible for an actor to focus attention on himself with a child on the stage," she said. "He might as well go home." Miss Jackson played the lead in a film called "No Room at the Inn," featuring evacuee children of the Second World War.

Irate Customer

MIDDLESBROUGH, England (CP)—Ahousewife who found three of four eggs she bought were bad went back to the store and threw them at the clerks, hitting one girl assistant in the eye. She was fined £1 plus £2, 7s, costs and damages.

Quotarians Endorse Civil Defence, Traffic Laws; Score Crime Comics

An agressive policy in the fight against the printing and sale of crime and horror comic books, together with other important resolutions was pledged by Quota Club International at final business session of its 34th annual convention at Banff Springs Hotel in the Canadian Rockies.

Members voted also to recommend that all Quotarians pledge strict observance of traffic laws, while the third resolution to receive unanimous approval was the endorsement of the civil defence program in each local Quota community.

The study of educational needs was also endorsed by the group. Other resolutions concerned the support of the work of the Girl Guides, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and the YWCA and girls' service groups.

At the closing luncheon members of the Australian delegation gave a report of service work "Down Under," and their efforts to alleviate distress caused by the recent floods in New South Wales. In addition to the Australian delegation, the delegates from Alaska received special recognition.

Over 500 delegates and members from clubs in the United States, Australia and Canada, attended the four-day convention. Sightseeing trips through the mountains, including a ride in the chair-lift, preceded the installation banquet, which concluded the four-day convention.

TODAY'S RECIPE

GLAZED STRAWBERRY TARTS

One quart box strawberries, 4 teaspoons cornstarch, ½ cup sugar, few grains salt, ¼ cup water, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, remaining berries from one quart, about 2½ cups.

Wash, hull and drain strawberries. Crush one cup reserving the remainder to fill baked tart shells. Place crushed berries in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and put through a fine sieve. Make a paste of the cornstarch, sugar, salt and water, and add this to the sieved berries. Return to the heat, stirring constantly until the mixture boils and becomes clear—about 3 minutes. Cool slightly and add lemon juice. Place well drained berries in individual baked tart shells. Spoon the glaze over the berries.

If desired, place a teaspoon or two of softened cream cheese or a tablespoon of vanilla pudding in each tart shell before adding the berries. Yield 1 dozen medium tarts.

Handy for the beach is the terry robe with attached hood. Nice for keeping off wind and fine for protecting the hair from the sun.

Kelpin, 340 Bay Street, and Russell Edward Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Coleman, 741 Ralph Street. Father M. O'Connell officiated at the ceremony.

For a honeymoon to be spent in Washington and Oregon, the bride chose a black and white checked jacket topping a black slim skirt, complemented with white shoes, purse and hat. Red roses were in her corsage.

Lace and Organdy Wedding Gown For Bride Elizabeth Ann Paterson

To traditional wedding music, Miss Elizabeth Ann Paterson entered St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church to wed Lieut. John Lloyd Woodbury, in a full naval ceremony performed by Dr. J. L. W. McLean.

A bouffant dress fashioned with a dainty lace bodice and sweetheart neckline was chosen by the bride. Lace formed the back of the skirt, which extended into a slight train. Lace appliqued organdy, scalloped with edging, formed the front of the skirt. A small coronet studded with brilliants and seed pearls held her three-quarter-length veil of illusion net edged with lace. Her cascade bouquet was of yellow roses and stephanotis.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Gordon R. Clay; bridesmatron, Mrs. E. Tudor Jones; bridesmaid, Miss Andrea Clay, and flower girls, Miss Sherry Clay and Miss Patricia Jackson. Mrs. Clay wore a full-length gown of yellow lace bodice and jacket. Her bouquet was of flame-toned gladioli. Mrs. Jones and Miss Clay wore matching gowns and headpieces of pastel blue and pink, complemented with colonial bouquets of sweetheart roses and sweet peas. Flower girls were gowned in similarly styled dresses of pink and blue and carried colonial bouquets of roses and sweet peas.

Commander Lyle Hoar, RCN (R), was best man, and ushers were Lieut. M. Seeger and CO E. T. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury will live at 1344 Pandora Avenue.

Sapala-deMontigny Wedding In Our Lady of Lourdes

Miss Carmel Rea deMontigny was a lovely bride as she entered Our Lady of Lourdes Church Thursday evening on the arm of her father, for her wedding to Chester Joseph Sapala. Father M. MacNamara officiated at the ceremony, and Mrs. Frank Jones, accompanied by organist, Mrs. L. Gill, sang "Ave Maria."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. deMontigny, 2944 Shakespeare Street, and her groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sapala, 1284 Downham Place.

A white ballerina length gown of net with lace trim, a strapless bodice and tiny jacket was chosen by the bride. She wore a pearl brooch on her gown, and the groom's gift of pearl earrings and necklace. Her Elizabethan-style veil cascaded to the hem of her full skirt, and was caught to a headpiece of net trimmed with pearls. Red and white roses were in her bouquet.

Mrs. Real deMontigny was matron of honor for her sister-in-law. She chose a blue ballerina-length gown of net with lace all-around peplum. Bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Brown and Helen Sapala, wore ballerina-length gowns of net with lace inserts across the bodices and into the skirts, in yellow and mauve respectively, and Miss Ann Christian wore a pink net ballerina-length gown with strapless bodice and tiny jacket, and diamond-shaped inserts in the skirt.

All four attendants carried bouquets of carnations en tone with their dresses. Flower girl, Carol deMontigny, was frocked in a pink dress with flower pockets, and she carried a colonial bouquet of summer flowers.

Best man was Ian Dyke, and ushers, Ed Sapala, Cas Sapala and Bob Coutts.

A reception followed in White Eagle Hall, where a 50-pound three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table. The cake was decorated with pink doves which were sent from friends in the East, pink, champagne and white roses. Two rings held by two doves topped the cake, and white bells and roses were placed on the table. Frank Jones proposed the traditional toast to the bride's happiness.

For a honeymoon to be spent in Portland, the bride donned a light blue suit with blue hat and off-white accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations and a gardenia.

Mr. and Mrs. Sapala will make their home at 618 Francis Street.

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

There isn't anything to the play of today's hand. South has 13 of the surest tricks ever seen. The only problem is in bidding the grand slam.

When the hand was actually played in a recent team match, one team stopped at only six spades. The South player found out that his partner had only one ace, and he was afraid that it would be the ace of hearts instead of the ace of spades. Failure to bid the grand slam cost this player 750 points.

2♠	Pass	3♥	Pass

5♦	Pass	7♠	Pass

Was there actually any good reason for this player's caution? There shouldn't be if the two partners are good bidders and trust each other. The secret lies in the use of the Blackwood Convention after a cue bid in the enemy's suit.

If South jumped to four no-trump at his second turn, he would be asking only this simple question: "Partner, how manys aces do you hold?" North would respond five diamonds, showing only one ace, and South would have a problem.

When South took the trouble to make a cue bid in hearts, the enemy's suit, and then made the Blackwood bid of four no-trump, his question was very different: "Partner, how many aces do you hold outside of hearts." If North had only the ace of hearts, he would have to respond five clubs, showing no ace. The actual response of five diamonds showed one ace—outside of hearts.

Knowledge of this convention made it easy for the successful team to bid the grand slam. It was clear that North had the ace of spades and a second opening bid. There was bound to be a fine play for the grand slam.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

SUNDAY, JULY 3, 1955

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Be sure you avoid getting in middle in argument between family and outside associates. There is only one course, which your attendance at services of your choice this a.m. will reveal. Visit cheerful companions tonight.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—This is your day to think out early what your family, background, experience have long shown you to be right principles to follow. Be very careful of accidents on the highway. Stay home and improve your property.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Now you see clearly mistakes made in the past, the type of pleasures, creative gifts with which you are most strongly endowed. Be very economical with property; make no rash commitments. Get health fine tonight.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—You really want to let fly in all directions. However, if you will forget yourself in doing for others, you will find your own problems evaporate into the nothingness from which they came. of Carroll Righter's individual 16-page forecast for August And you will have added to self-control.

LEO (July 22 to August 21)—Accepting limitation you don't like, showing others you have peace within brings to your side those who had previously thought you unsympathetic, too preoccupied with your own worries. You gain much support by this act.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22)—Sidestep critical, gossipy, discontented friend, acquaintance who would waste your time while listing complaints. Look to what objective officials expect of you. Get your credit, vocational duties in better shape.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)—Seeking advice early from spiritual adviser brings lots of helpful suggestions you'd be wise to follow. P.m. fine for getting out with all interesting, fascinating persons who understand your position.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)—You want only to get away from where you now are. Use that fine self-control with which you are imbued to analyze your current condition, what distant places, persons offer. Then you remain steadfast by choice.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)—Refuse to become emotional, distraught over some fancied slight, built-up anxiety, which brings nothing but more problems. Join together with logical-reasoning colleague who shows future path clearly.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Quietly looking at your duties, present unsatisfactory conditions gives you new awareness what you want that is fine, sensible, purposeful in future. Make intelligent system. Then follow now.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—After services of your choice, combine with friends, colleagues, associates, partners, opponents to get out from under whatever you do not like. Bring swiftly into being the joint plan that most attracts.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Conditions at home and abroad in world of tense activity suggest course for you to pursue in future that will bring you feeling of satisfaction, happiness. Be sure to aid those less fortunate than you, also.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN SUNDAY

Sunday's child is one of those very interesting youngsters who may seem to make a great many changes in early life. However, there is a great interest in all types of mental and physical activity. So your child will have to taste many of life's ideas, pleasures, philosophies before settling down to the one that is best for him or her. Give solid foundation in what the world regards as accepted principles of right living. Then your progeny will hew a path of his or her own with character and real principles.

MONDAY, JULY 4, 1955

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—The full moon now brings into sharp focus whatever may be currently inadvisable in your job or home conditions. Make sure you plan today carefully, for quick results follow whatever you now do. Be patient.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Now you have a chance to get off to some rousing event which will stir in you anew whatever love you have for basically sound and secure surroundings that you may have. Make worthwhile new associates, convictions now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—You now would be wise to take time out to be quiet long enough to think over just where you are headed. Do you have that security within yourself—financial, emotional, self-confidence that brings you contentment? If not, get it today.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Seek those you know who are serious, well-organized, conscientious. Let them know what you desire the most from life. Then listen to understand their comments. Follow those at once that appeal as right for you.

LEO (July 22 to August 21)—Using holiday to think out, in whatever spare moments you have, the type of work you like best, how you can be more efficient and comfortable brings quick results that please you. Show co-workers how much you appreciate them.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22)—You awaken with a song on your lips. You can make this one of your most pleasant days in a long while. Contact all congenial companions. Show them you appreciate them by enjoying entertaining them at compatible pursuits.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)—Try to get your home, environment fixed up in more attractive fashion. Use this full moon also to entertain all you like to have in your dwelling. Make sure you smile. Be happy.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)—Now you can get out in world of action. See relatives, kin, choice comrades. Make sure you avoid all tiffs with others, which is very easy if you make up your mind to be considerate, friendly, understanding.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)—Your background gives you some idea just how far you have progressed since you first became interested in expanding whatever talents were then yours. You are on verge of big new outlets. Get ready for them.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Now you have a day to be as personal as you like. Think out what you desire in the future. Make sensible, solid, secure plans to obtain it. Then all fits swiftly into right groove for added success very soon.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Before you can do all those nice things for others it's necessary that you get rid of some debts, duties, anxieties of your own. Use this holiday to show you can start fresh, anew to scale greater heights.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Seek serious-minded, albeit close-fisted supporters, who can give you valuable advice how to get your own affairs in better shape. Let others see your best qualities right now. Then they will help greatly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN MONDAY

Monday's child is one of those rare youngsters who will always be interested in having his or her affairs on a solid and secure basis so that no want or need will be able to have any influence of an adverse nature on the life. You had best be sure early to bestow a foundational business course which will permit your progeny to understand proven business methods as they apply to real estate, merchandising and all that has to do with public commodities. Fine chart also for some artistic outlet, whether for pleasure or remuneration.

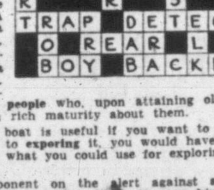
Times Crossword Answer

PUZZLE No. 118



COMMENTS:

ACROSS:

5. Aerial is an excellent answer. Every Serial, with sufficient revision and adaption, could be made suitable for TV.

12. Slashed justifies the phrase: "By several seconds"; Smashed does not.

13. One would hardly rely on a Lad, since he would be emotionally immature. A man can be a Cad and a bully in one sphere of life, and yet be faithful in love.

15. Old Ale certainly has a rich and mature quality. Old Age itself has no particular qualities at all; it is people who, upon attaining old Age, may possibly have a certain rich maturity about them.

16. Inlet fits the clue. A boat is useful if you want to get to an Islet, but when it comes to exporing it, you would have to do this on foot. A boat is just what you could use for explorinng an Inlet, which is water.

18. Trap is best. An opponent on the alert against a Trap can normally avoid it. Alertness is less likely to save him from being Tripped, since a Trip only takes a split second and can come quite unexpectedly. Thus Trap, of the two, is preferred although it is a close choice.

21. "In his absence" points to Detect; if it were done in his presence, there would be no question of "Detecting" it, but there would still be the question of Detesting it.

24. Rear fits the clue more aptly. Whether or not you expect an animal to Roar depends on what species of animal it is, not whether it has a placid disposition or not (e.g. a placid old lion may Roar, but other animals may be far from placid yet never Roar). The clue is broadly true Rear.

25. If a man has a fine-looking Boy, the implication is that the Boy is his son, and the man may well be proud. He may have no cause for pride in a fine-looking Bay, which he may bought, and had no hand in breeding or rearing. Buy is too vague.

26. You don't expect an astute Backer to lose his capital (i.e. his own money). You don't expect an astute Banker to lose his customer's capital (not really his capital).

DOWN:

1. Few is better because it contributes to the meaning of the clue, while New is redundant. Any friend "made" must be a New one.

6. A film director would only decide to Remake an exceptional picture. You do not Retake a whole picture, but only certain shots and scenes.

7. The clue implies that it is a pity, anyway. This is generally true of Delay, which one woulld prefer to avoid. Decay is a necessary and inevitable function of nature, and is only a pity when it affects human welfare.

11. Some people believe that a dog should not be allowed to jump up on a Chair. Everybody, you may well say—and that includes even the most ardent dog-lover, however—appreciates that a certain amount of restraint is necessary and that a Chain is necessary on some occasions. What they would object to is a dog being Chained up all the time.

12. Smart must apply: you couldn't be stung without it Smarting. You might or might not Start — it would depend upon circumstances.

14. After the injury, he may anxious to Rest it—to give it every opportunity to recover. After it had recovered, he would want to Test it.

ATOMS FOR PEACE

Surprisingly, some of the world's foremost aircraft specialists said it could be done, even offered to do it—in very large numbers. They were given contracts to go ahead with the construction of both plane and power plant.

As this is written, an additional $30,000,000 has been added to the original $20,000,000, and a "testing facility" for land-based aircraft units has been started in Idaho.

According to Col. W. S. Barksdale of AEC's reactor development division, the turbojet and the ramjet engines are the types most likely to be seen first in an atomic airplane.

Both require large volumes of very hot air (now obtained by burning liquid fuel), to be ejected to give thrust.

The ramjet is especially promising because it has no rotating parts. Fuel burning inside raises the gas pressure and blasts the mixture out of the rear.

Although the problem looks staggering, AEC is going ahead with it, so there must be a reasonable chance of making the machine work. No one can tell how long it will be before atomic planes fill the sky.

Advantages, again, are with the military craft, which can ignore economy. The outstanding value of the flying atom, Colonel Barksdale points out, is extreme range and the ability to complete any mission, and get home regardless of weather or devious routes.

Could Stay Up Indefinitely

The atom powered bomber could stay in the air almost indefinitely, out - waiting the weather or going around by any route that was safe.

The advantages would be shared only partly by commercial aircraft, which have so many possible landing points that there is usually enough fuel to reach them.

One minor advantage they would have, it should be noted, is that fuel load would not change in flight. Hence take-offs and landings would be simplified, under conditions of constant load.

One might well ask, how can a plane tolerate a 50-ton radiation shield? Most planes can't. But the huge B-47 bomber now carries 50 tons of gasoline at take-off, so that there might actually be a saving in weight with atomic engines.

I believe that the first atom-powered bomber will be announced within the next few years. It will be experimental but will no doubt work. It would be no surprise to find the United States in possession of a navy and an air force with many atomic units within 25 years.

Another would be the unvarying weight of the power plant throughout the voyage. In the old ships a serious lightening resulted from burning up the fuel. The weight loss had to be made up by discharging lifting gas, an expensive proposition.

A good many people like to dream about atomic power for guided missiles and space ships. The case for atomic rockets, however, is rather hopeless, unless some brand new principles of physics come to light.

A rocket must push against something, according to Newton's third law of action and reaction.

The thing it pushes against is its own fuel as the combustion gases are ejected behind. It does not push against the air, for there is no air in outer space.

Since atomic engines produce only heat they do not impart high velocity to particles of matter in any one direction. Hence, to make an atomic rocket work you would have to load it with some heavy substance, but then you would be right back where you started.

Knocked Unconscious, Survives 60-Foot Fall

CRYSTAL LAKE, Ill. (AP) —A three-year-old boy plunged 60 feet into the icy waters of a well and floated there, face up and unconscious, for 45 minutes Friday before his farmer father spotted him and called rescuers. Doctors said Kenneth Stoerp probably owed his life to the fact that the plunge knocked him unconscious. This kept him from struggling and enabled him to remain afloat in 20 feet of water.

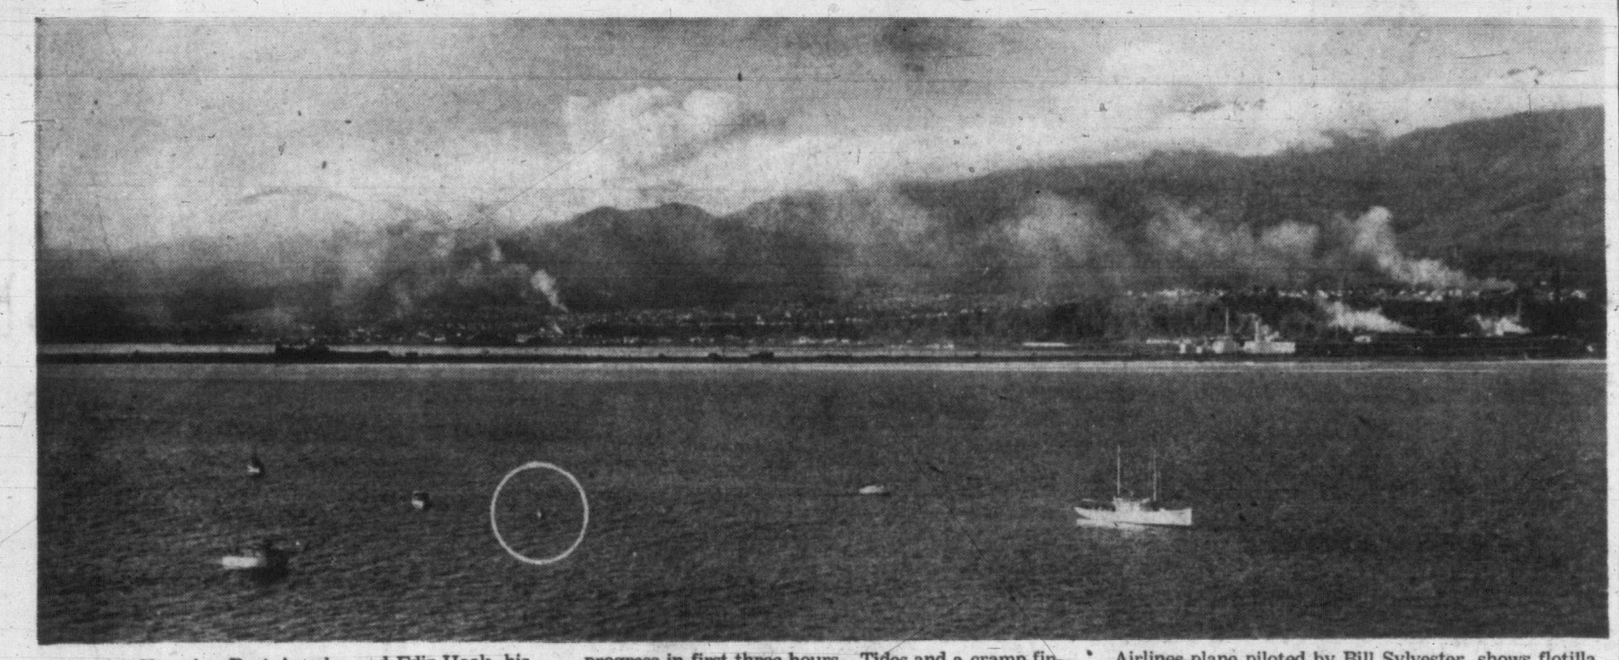
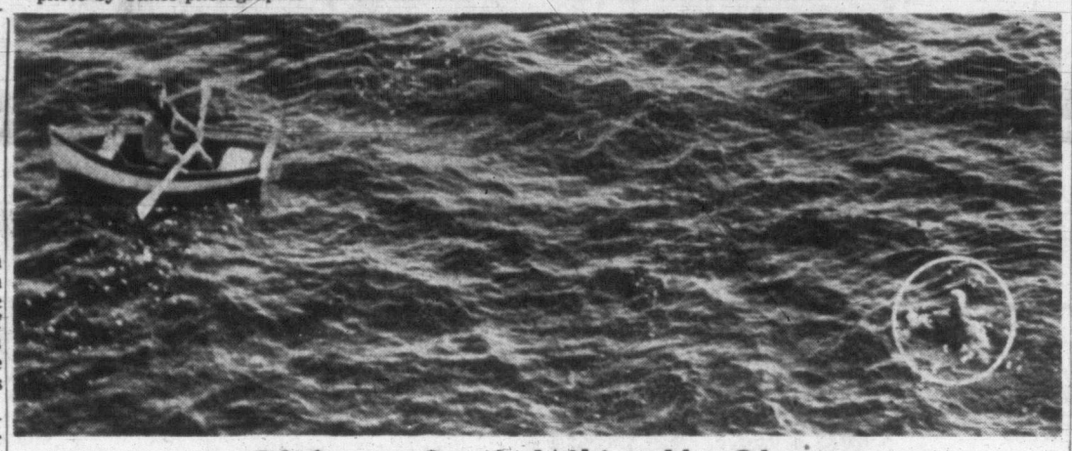
Tide and Cramp Defeat Bill Muir Again

* * * * * * * * *

Dispassionate Olympics Watched Morning Start of 'Wrong-Way' Swim



With the Olympics, Port Angeles and Ediz Hook, his Starting point, in background, Bill Muir started his "wrong way" swim at 7.16 a.m. today and made fine progress in first three hours. Tides and a cramp finally ended courageous effort at noon. This aerial photo by Times photographer Bill Halkett from B.C. Airlines plane piloted by Bill Sylvester, shows flotilla with official boat, the Lady Royal, in lead. Muir and his coach boat are in circle.



Obdurate Strait Whips Up Chop

City Swimmer Lasts 4 Hours 45 Minutes In Northward Try

He was forced to quit at noon when a cramp—plus the effect of wind and tides—made it impossible for him to proceed.

Breast-stroking Muir, making the first strait crossing try from Port Angeles to Victoria, was in the water four hours and 44 minutes and swam a total of about 12 miles.

He was successful, however, in getting only about four miles from the American shore.

GROUND SWELL

Observers at the scene said Muir was beaten by a big ground swell, westerly winds plus a flood tide which did not come up to expectations.

Muir went in the water at 7.16 a.m. about one mile west of the coast guard station on Ediz Hook (about half way along the Hook).

His plan was to take advantage of about two hours of ebb tide, get slowly away from shore while the tide was carrying him down the strait in the general direction of Cape Flattery.

He hoped when slack water came to go across and pick up the flood to carry him past Race Rocks and into Victoria or between Race Rocks and Vancouver Island.

ACCORDING TO PLAN

Everything went according to plan until Muir was about four miles north of Angeles Point. He already had plied through some severe rips and optimism in the Muir flotilla was high.

By around 11 a.m. — nearly four hours after the start—Muir was about one mile from the international boundary but his progress was beginning to slow. He was swimming strongly but the big help counted on from the flood tide failed to materialize.

At noon — having made no progress for about an hour—Muir suffered a cramp, couldn't shake it and gave up.

IN GOOD SHAPE

Muir, who was sponsored on the try by the Lansdowne Cafe, near Shelbourne, was in good shape when taken out of the water, even though he'd tried visibly in the last hour of the assault.

But he was cheery and chatted easily with his handlers.

The cold never bothered him.

Muir was handled on this attempt by Harold Phillips, the man who drifted in a boat two days and nights in the Strait nine years ago. Muir's first try was navigated by Alf Webb. But Webb had no part of this attempt because he didn't agree with the route.

25-A-MINUTE

Muir stuck to a 25-per-minute stroke throughout today's swim. This compared to 35-40 in his first effort.

His handlers insisted he keep to the slower pace because time wasn't considered the big factor.

Only once before the end came at noon was the Muir camp downhearted. That was at about 9.15 when the weather took a turn for the worse. The wind freshened, and there were white caps everywhere.

But in half an hour the weather improved and progress was steady again until around 11 a.m.

B.C. ENJOYS 'DEATHLESS' HOLIDAY

Dominion Day traffic accidents took the lives of 50 persons in Canada, but none of the fatalities occurred in British Columbia.

It is the first time in many years this province has come through the holiday without any deaths on the highways.

Victoria and Vancouver Island had several road accidents, but none of a serious nature.

The clean slate brought enthusiastic comment from traffic officials of the province. Chief John Blackstock of Victoria said it was a "fine show" and he pleaded for continued "driving sense" during the remainder of the week-end.

(From Canadian Press Dispatches)

Tributes and congratulations were heaped today on the underdog oarsmen from the University of British Columbia for their magnificent showing at the historic Henley Regatta where they lost by a scant one-third of a length to the University Pennsylvania crew in the finals of the Grand Challenge Cup after defeating the formidable Russian eight by a length and a half in the semi-finals Friday. (See Sports Pages.)

In Vancouver city officials were planning a civic reception when the eight and their coach, Frank Read come home.

CONGRATULATED

Premier W. A. C. Bennett sent a cable: "The government and people of B.C. congratulate you on your wonderful victory of yesterday and your remarkable showing today. Best wishes to your party."

An official statement from the office of Vancouver's Mayor Fred Hume said:

"Their victory over the Russians has proved that the success of the same crew at the British Empire Games last year was no fluke victory. An outstanding aspect of their win is that little over a year ago they were all novices."

Dean S. N. F. Chant, acting president of UBC, said the victory was "a great tribute to Frank Read as coach and to members of the crew who worked so loyally under his guidance."

"The university is very proud of them and our best wishes go with them for the final test," he said.

SWAP SHIRTS

Canadian National Exhibition officials in Toronto cabled both the B.C. crew and their victor, the Penn. U. eight inviting them to race during the exhibition early in September.

And back in England the Russians they had so surprisingly defeated, swapped shirts with the Canadian oarsmen and posed with them for a group picture; but UBC officials turned down a Russian request to try out the Vancouver shell in a practice run.

As to today's race itself, stroke Glen Smith said: "We did not get our rate of striking down fast enough."

Carl Ogawa, 20-year-old 115-pound Japanese-Canadian coxswain of the crew, said the fairly strong crosswind had not bothered him.

"Anyway it was the same for both of us," he added.

Mrs. Meraw, Thomas Take Off Next Week

Mrs. Ann Mundigel Meraw, a slight 36-year-old Vancouver housewife, and burly Bert Thomas, are both planning assaults on the Strait of Juan de Fuca next week.

Mrs. Meraw will make a last practise swim Sunday, leaving Sidney wharf at 9 a.m., and swimming for eight hours before returning to the wharf.

Her time of departure for the strait attempt will not be announced until 12 hours before take-off, but coach Pat Roach of Toronto said this morning the attempt would be made by Friday.

Mrs. Meraw will leave from the Victoria side of the strait, and her start will be made at night. Details of the course, and the swimmer's navigator, are being kept secret.

Bert Thomas will make his fifth attempt to cross the strait, "anytime the weather's right." Bert will leave for Port Angeles this evening, and his first practise swim on the U.S. side for the latest attempt will start from Ediz Hook about 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

Bert is going to make every practice swim from Port Angeles an official swim, and if conditions are right, he'll keep going "right into the Inner Harbor."

VANCOUVER (CP)—The engagement of Arnold Webster, 56, head of the CCF party in British Columbia, and Miss Daisy de Jong, former inspector of home economics for the provincial government, was announced here today.

Miss de Jong resigned her post last month. She declined to divulge the "hour and place" of the wedding, which she said would be private. Mr. Webster was in Nanaimo on party business.

Steel Workers Get 15c Hike, Customers Get Price Boost

PITTSBURGH (AP)—U. S. Steel Corp., which granted an average 15-cent-an-hour wage boost to its employees to break the back of a country-wide steel strike, is boosting prices about $7.50 a ton.

Big Steel's action came shortly after it ended the shortest walkout in the industry's history in a United Steelworkers (CIO).

Within a few hours after the 12-hour strike ended Friday all of the industry's "big six" had followed the leader in agreeing to the pay boost. They are Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Republic, Jones & Laughlin, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Inland Steel.

Clifford F. Hood, U.S. Steel president, said the 5.8 per cent increase—which will put a $132.50 price tag on a ton of basic carbon steel—wasn't entirely the result of the wage increase.

Hood said other factors are involved, such as increased taxes and new construction.

Tides, Cramp End Strait Swim Attempt

He was forced to quit at noon when a cramp—plus the effect of wind and tides—made it impossible for him to proceed.

Breast-stroking Muir, making the first strait crossing try from Port Angeles to Victoria, was in the water four hours and 45 minutes and swam a total of about 12 miles.

He was successful, however, in getting only about four miles from the American shore.

GROUND SWELL

Observers at the scene said Muir was beaten by a big ground swell, westerly winds plus a flood tide which did not come up to expectations.

Muir went in the water at 7.16 a.m. about one mile west of the coast guard station on Ediz Hook (about half way along the Hook).

His plan was to take advantage of about two hours of ebb tide, get slowly away from shore while the tide was carrying him down the strait in the general direction of Cape Flattery.

He hoped when slack water came to go across and pick up the flood to carry him past Race Rocks and into Victoria or between Race Rocks and Vancouver Island.

ACCORDING TO PLAN

Everything went according to plan until Muir was about four miles north of Angeles Point. He already had plied through some severe rips and optimism in the Muir flotilla was high.

By around 11 a.m. — nearly four hours after the start—Muir was about one mile from the international boundary but his progress was beginning to slow. He was swimming strongly but the big help counted on from the flood tide failed to materialize.

At noon — having made no progress for about an hour—Muir suffered a cramp, couldn't shake it and gave up.

IN GOOD SHAPE

Muir, who was sponsored on the try by the Lansdowne Cafe, near Shelbourne, was in good shape when taken out of the water, even though he'd tired visibly in the last hour of the assault.

But he was cheery and chatted easily with his handlers.

The cold never bothered him.

Muir was handled on this attempt by Harold Phillips, the man who drifted in a boat two days and nights in the Strait nine years ago. Muir's first try was navigated by Alf Webb. But Webb had no part of this attempt because he didn't agree wit! the route.

25-A-MINUTE

Muir stuck to a 25-per-minute stroke throughout today's swim. This compared to 35-40 in his first effort.

His handlers insisted he keep to the slower pace because time wasn't considered the big factor.

Only once before the end came at noon was the Muir camp downhearted. That was at about 9.15 when the weather took a turn for the worse. The wind freshened, and there were white caps everywhere.

But in half an hour the weather improved and progress was steady again until around 11 a.m.

B.C. ENJOYS 'DEATHLESS' HOLIDAY

Dominion Day violent deaths took the lives of 50 persons in Canada, but none of the fatalities occurred in British Columbia.

It is the first time in many years this province has come through the holiday without any deaths on the highways.

Victoria and Vancouver Island had several road accidents, but none of a serious nature.

The clean slate brought enthusiastic comment from traffic officials of the province. Chief John Blackstock of Victoria said it was a "fine show" and he pleaded for continued "driving sense" during the remainder of the week-end.

Steel Workers Get 15c Hike, Customers Get Price Boost

PITTSBURGH (AP)—U. S. Steel Corp., which granted an average 15-cent-an-hour wage boost to its employees to break the back of a country-wide steel strike, is boosting prices about $7.50 a ton.

Big Steel's action came shortly after it ended the shortest walkout in the industry's history by the United Steelworkers (CIO).

Within a few hours after the 12-hour strike ended Friday all of the industry's "big six" had followed the leader in agreeing to the pay boost. They are Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Republic, Jones & Laughlin, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Inland Steel.

Clifford F. Hood, U.S. Steel president, said the 5.8 per cent increase—which will put a $132.50 price tag on a ton of basic carbon steel—wasn't entirely the result of the wage increase.

Hood said other factors are involved, such as increased taxes and new construction.

This figure is the calculated distance the swimmer was from takeoff point when swim ends. With tides and winds affecting a swimmer he or she may have actually covered a much greater distance through the water.

‡This swim was from Port Angeles side and distance was calculated from takeoff point on Ediz Hook. Muir was taken westward by tides and was still about 14 miles from Victoria when swim finished.
